

U.S. won't give oil to Saigon

WASHINGTON (AP) —South Vietnam has been encouraged by Washington to find its own sources of Middle East oil as a way of getting around the Arab oil embargo.

U.S. officials said the United States ultimately will pay for all oil purchased by the Saigon government. But they said the South Vietnamese must find their own supplies and handle the bookkeeping to make it appear the fuel is paid for by Saigon, not Washington.

Throughout the Indochina war, most oil for both U.S. and South Vietnamese military forces came from Singapore, which two weeks ago said it would no longer sell its oil to the United States.

Like more than a dozen other countries, Singapore was reacting to fears that Arab countries would stop providing it crude oil.

Since the cease-fire last January, the United States has been paying three international oil companies, Shell, Exxon and Caltex, for the oil that powers the South Vietnamese air force, army and much of the civilian economy.

South Vietnam has kept silent about the Arab-Israeli fighting, and a spokesman at the South Vietnamese embassy said Thursday his country's policy is virtually neutral.

In interviews, different officials said it is likely the Singapore refineries may not produce enough for South Vietnamese needs, so some oil may have to come directly from Arab nations, perhaps Saudi Arabia.

"The Arab countries have no interest in seeing South Vietnam collapse," one Vietnamese official said.

There has been no sign, even with the increased fighting in recent days, that the South Vietnamese are running out of oil. The country has some reserves upon which it can draw.

So far this year, the United States has underwritten the cost of more than 20 million barrels of oil for South Vietnam, Cambodia and Thailand.

Officials said the United States is doing all it can to encourage the South Vietnamese to cut back their use of oil.

Nonetheless, they said, it will be many years before Saigon can afford its own oil, and for now the United States will provide the cash for South Vietnam to buy its oil directly or indirectly from the Arab states.

Area gas flow is cut on Sunday

Most Fox Cities area gasoline service stations will be closed weekends from 9 p.m. Saturday until their normal opening time Monday morning.

A vast majority of members of the Fox Cities Retail Gasoline Dealers Association voted Thursday night to go along with President Nixon's request for a voluntary weekend closing, starting this weekend, to help conserve gasoline.

Only three of about 35 dealers represented at the meeting said they planned to stay open. The three either are on or near major highways. Several other dealers who were not present had earlier indicated they also would be staying open because of highway locations.

The association is composed of dealers from Neenah through Kaukauna and other portions of Outagamie County.

The 9 p.m. Saturday closing narrowly won out over a 6 p.m. closing. Clarence (Butch) VanderPutten, association president, had suggested the earlier closing. "Personally, I can't see bringing in a man just to work for three hours," he said. A number of dealers, however, indicated the additional three hours would help them.

Don Mueller, who concurred with the Sunday closing, suggested designated stations stay open on a rotating basis so there would be gasoline available in emergencies. "I feel I have some obligation to my customers," he said.

The idea was rejected, however. "There are too many oil companies involved for it to work," VanderPutten said.

VanderPutten, who operates the only 24-hour wrecker service in conjunction with a service station in the area, said he would continue to provide emergency road service on weekends, but that his policy would be that he would provide one gallon of gasoline to anyone stalled on the highway, but that he would not open his pumps for anyone.

Bill Rosz urged the dealers to give the voluntary 9 p.m. closing a try. He noted he had recently reopened on Sunday: after being closed during the summer and said that Sunday business was poor.

One of the dealers who said he would remain open on Sunday was Robert Malchow who owns his station. He noted "I've got a quarter of a million dollars' investment. Right now I'll be open on Sunday." But, he said, "if I was in a company owned station I would hand in the keys and go home."

Nixon bank certificate confirmed

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) —A spokesman for the Key Biscayne Bank has confirmed that President Nixon once had a $100,000 certificate of deposit in the bank owned by friend C. G. "Bebe" Rebozo, the Miami Herald said today.

The reported disclosure by Thomas Wakefield, bank vice chairman, came a day after Richard Gerstein, Dade County state attorney, revealed he had subpoenaed the bank for any records it had on trust accounts or savings certificates held by Nixon and nine others.

Wakefield was quoted as saying the certificate of deposit was taken out by Nixon after he sold his New York City apartment prior to the 1968 presidential campaign.

But Wakefield said he believed there was no connection between the Nixon account and a $100,000 campaign contribution from billionaire Howard Hughes. Rebozo has said that money was held in a bank safe-deposit box for three years before being returned after the President's 1972 re-election.

"It's my understanding there's no relationship between the CD and the $100,000 from Hughes," Wakefield was quoted as saying. "There's just no link at all."

Wakefield could not be reached immediately for comment.

A certificate of deposit earns more interest than a regular savings deposit but must be left in a bank for a specified period.

Wakefield told the Herald he could not offer a specific date but said the Nixon certificate was issued before the Hughes gift was received.

Nixon said earlier this month that before he entered the 1968 campaign, he "decided to clean the decks and put everything in real estate."

The Herald said Gerstein also asked the bank for any records it had on savings certificates or trust accounts involving Nixon's brother, Donald; Bahamas Prime Minister Linden O. Pindling; Seymour Alter, a consultant to Paradise Island Casino in the Bahamas; Wakefield, who also acts as Rebozo's personal attorney; Herbert Kalmbach, a former Nixon attorney and fund raiser; former Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans; and former White House aides Dwight Chapin, John Ehrlichman and H. R. Haldeman.

Fire ruins searched

KUMAMOTO, Japan (AP) —Firemen searched the smoldering ruins of the Taiyo department store today for more victims of a fire that killed at least 100 persons.

Eighty-six persons were injured, including 54 of those who helped fight the blaze.

The bodies of 99 holiday shoppers and store employees were recovered within hours of the fire Thursday, and another body was found today. Officials said 70 of those killed were females, 28 were males and two bodies were burned beyond recognition.

Officials in this southern Japanese city were investigating the fire's origin. The blaze started at 1:20 p.m. near an employees' staircase on the third floor of the seven-story building, and flames and smoke spread quickly. Fire department officials said the store's sprinkler system was under repair and not working. They said many of the victims apparently were trapped by automatic closing fire doors on the fourth and sixth floors and the smoke suffocated them.

Several thousand persons were in the store. Many of them slid down ropes from the windows or scrambled down scaffolding on the outside of the building where some remodeling was being done. Firemen took others down their ladders, and a helicopter lifted some off the roof.

Although only about one per cent of the Japanese are Christians, Christmas since World War II has been celebrated with gift-giving, and New Year's is a traditional holiday. The Tokyo fire department warned today that the shoppers jamming the capital's department stores also were in peril because fire exits in many stores were blocked with goods.

Experts start studying 18-minute tape buzz

WASHINGTON (AP) —Experts today began studying the flawed White House Watergate tape in which an 18-minute segment of conversation has been replaced by a buzz.

The tape was taken to an unnamed laboratory in New York Thursday night to be studied by a six-man panel agreed upon by the White House and special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski.

Also shipped to New York were the electric typewriter of Miss Rose Mary

Woods and a high intensity lamp that had been on her desk on Oct. 1. That was the day she was transcribing a tape made June 20, 1972 that included a conversation between President Nixon and H. R. Haldeman, then White House chief of staff.

Miss Woods, Nixon's secretary for 23 years, told a federal court hearing that she accidentally pushed the record button on a tape machine when she leaned back to answer a telephone and thereby might have caused an erasure. But she said the telephone conversation lasted not more than four to five minutes, which would not account for the 18-minute hum that is in the tape during the Nixon-Haldeman conversation.

On Thursday White House counsel J. Fred Buzhardt testified he was able to nearly duplicate the buzzing sound by depressing both the start and record button on the recorder while running the typewriter and lamp. But he said that an expert called to the White House was not able to duplicate that sound.

The court hearing into the missing segment probably will resume Tuesday, possibly with Alexander M. Haig Jr., White House chief of staff, on the stand. The exact day and time of his testimony was left open for his convenience. Haig was not available today and no witnesses were heard.

Leonard Garment, a lawyer who has been representing the White House, said he did not know how long the laboratory tests on the June 20 tape will take or when the experts will begin working on nine other tapes that have been turned over to U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica.

He would not identify the laboratory other than to say that it was private. A representative of the White House, Richard Hauser, and a representative from the prosecutor's office, Carl Feldbaum, are there as observers.

Other witnesses expected to testify next week at the hearing are Lawrence Higby, former aide to Haldeman; Gen. John Bennett, of the White House staff; and Samuel Powers, a Miami attorney

Nixon ponders gas rationing

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon may be nearing a decision on whether to impose gasoline rationing, higher gasoline taxes or both.

He scheduled a meeting for today with his cabinet-level energy group. Such a move usually means that a decision is near.

Sources said the energy group is leaning heavily toward recommending rationing to Nixon. Senior administration officials have concluded that Congress would not approve a large increase in the federal tax on gasoline to discourage driving, the sources said.

However, Nixon is known to view rationing as a last resort. On Nov. 7 he said the American people would resent peacetime rationing "very, very much" and that he personally disliked it because of the power it gave to the officials who administer it.

In a broadcast address Sunday, Nixon announced measures he said would eliminate about 10 per cent of a 17 per cent shortage of petroleum and that "additional actions will be necessary."

Herbert Stein, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, said Thursday that no decision has been made either way.

Contingency plans are being drafted for rationing, the White House has confirmed.

Stein, reporting to newsmen on a high-level assessment of the fuel shortage's economic impact, predicted it will push the nation's economy down to near-recession levels next year.

Unemployment, now standing at 4.5 per cent, will rise to close to 6 per cent, he said. That would mean that more than a million workers would lose jobs.

Stein said Americans can expect sharply higher fuel prices. He said the government should maintain price controls on petroleum because oil companies would otherwise reap windfall profits.

He said the worst impact would come in the first six months of next year and

Heroin seized in Sheboygan

SHEBOYGAN, Wis. (AP) — Pure heroin worth $250,000 was seized this week at a Sheboygan residence, according to Police Chief Oakley Frank.

Porfirio Sosa, 44, was charged Wednesday with possession of heroin with intent to deliver, possession of a switch blade knife and with being a felony repeater. One other person was taken into custody but not charged, Frank said.

Dist. Atty. Lance Jones called it the single largest heroin seizure in the state.

Circuit Court Judge Allen Deehr set bail at $100,000.

said the output of the economy could decline from January through March.

In other developments:

—Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., criticized continuing U.S. oil shipments to South Vietnam, Cambodia and Thailand during the domestic shortage. The Pentagon said the amounts of oil have been reduced but the policy of providing fuel to the three nations remains unchanged.

—The Arab oil-producing countries promised to relax the energy squeeze on Britain, France, Spain and those African nations that broke relations with Israel. The Arabs have cut off all oil for the United States.

—Chrysler Corp. said it will close several auto assembly plants for varying periods in January. Chrysler said the move was to change over to increased small-car production.

—Robert D. Timm, chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board, said the fuel shortage probably will result in some cities losing all scheduled air service.

—The House Public Works Committee approved a bill which would set a nationwide speed limit for all vehicles of 55 miles per hour.

Family stays together

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) —The skeleton of an elderly woman was found in a locked-up house today, and police said it appeared as if her body had been placed in the living room by a brother and sister who wanted her to "remain part of the family."

Their bodies were found upstairs in the bed where they died of natural causes, officials said.

Police said the skeleton of Cecilia Kenney, 84, was discovered on a downstairs couch facing a television set. They said she may have been dead as long as a year.

Upstairs, police found the bodies of her 76-year-old sister, Grace, lying on a bed next to the brother, Roland, 72. They were thought to have died within the last month, according to officials.

Det. Sgt. Bruce Russell said in his report, "It appears that Cecilia died of natural causes and the other two dressed her and laid her on the couch so that she could still remain part of the family."

"Grace and Roland continued living a normal life. Roland died around a month ago, and was asleep in his bed at the time. Grace left him there, and tried to continue her life, but found she could not

"She lay in the same bed as Roland and died a few days or weeks later."

Medical examiner Thomas Mathews said there was no evidence of foul play.

The family was reclusive and shunned contacts with neighbors, authorities said.

The discovery was made after neighbors called the post office to report mail had been piling up in front of the house for three weeks. Post office officials notified police, who entered the house through a window and discovered the three bodies, along with the bodies of two pets.

Deer not carriers of leptospirosis in Calumet herds

BY DAVID WEITZ
Post-Crescent Farm Editor

Deer probably aren't the villains that have caused leptospirosis, a parasitic disease, to infect dairy cattle in Calumet County causing milk losses to farmers.

Deer are known to suffer from the disease but a joint study of the departments of natural resources and agriculture hasn't shown that deer spread the leptospirosis in Calumet County, according to Dr. A. A. Erdmann, chief veterinarian of the agriculture department.

Dr. Richard A. Decker, DVM, veterinary diagnostician at Central Health Lab, Madison is more emphatic. "It's much more likely to come from rodents or skunks."

Leptospirosis is a urinary tract infection. In cattle it can cause abortion and sharp milk loss. It can be spread when stagnant barnyard water becomes contaminated with parasites.

Rodents, because of their eating habits and tendency to be prime parasite hosts, may be more prone than other wild game to spread leptospirosis to dairy animals.

Tests of blood were taken from four deer in Calumet County by DNR warden Richard Streng, Chilton. The tests showed that none of the animals were infected. They were from towns of Woodville, Charlestown, Rantoul and Stockbridge. The blood samples were taken in April and November and processed at Central Animal Health Lab, Madison.

But the state check of Calumet County herds indicated that wild animals could have introduced the parasitic disease to dairy cattle. "The chance for exposure to wild life reservoirs of infection was great. Fifteen of the twenty farms had woodland pastures and all twenty farms indicated the presence of wild life and rodents that are commonly known to carry leptospires," said the state report.

Dairy farmer gets 'Ameri-Milk' prefix

MENASHA—Donald R. Mielke, Menasha, has been granted the exclusive use of the title 'Ameri-Milk' as a prefix in naming all registered Holsteins bred under his ownership by the Holstein-Friesian Association of America, Brattleboro, Vt.

There now are nearly 58,000 officially recorded prefixes in the association files.

Vaccination can protect cattle against the disease, according to Erdmann. He said the process must be repeated each year but that it can be effective protection against leptospirosis.

Presently, because it is not as well controlled as brucellosis, the disease causes more financial loss to Wisconsin dairymen than the brucellosis, according to Erdmann.

The state report showed that purchased cattle as a source of infection "was probably not the most significant factor in this study." It said, however, that in some cases it is unlikely that rodents or wildlife caused the disease.

"The three herds with a high incidence...were essentially closed herds, thus a strong assumption can be made against rodents and/or wildlife as a source of infection."

A four-year-old in the herd of George Dodd, Winneconne, led total butterfat production and a three-year-old from the herd of Raymond Koepf, Fremont, listed highest milk production during October, according to records of the Winnebago County Dairy Herd Improvement Association.

Dodd's four-year-old listed 19,420 pounds of milk and 826 pounds of butterfat and the three-year-old from the Koepf herd had 21,050 milk and 757 butterfat.

The highest butterfat test for the month was recorded for a four-year-old Guernsey from the herd of W. H. Harness and Sons, Neenah, who produced 10,800 milk with 566 butterfat for a 5.2 per cent butterfat production.

The high producing two-year-olds on the roster were listed by: Claude Miller and Sons, Oshkosh, 17,890 milk and 670 butterfat; Ray Vander Heiden, Neenah, 17,080 milk and 626 butterfat; Leo Manske, route 3, Ripon, 16,580 milk and 607 butterfat; Ervin Schultz, Oshkosh, 15,150 milk and 606 butterfat; George Dobberke, Neenah, 13,750 milk and 603 butterfat;

Twelve Outagamie County older 4-H'ers will attend the Northeast District 4-H Junior Leader Conference Dec. 7-9 at Camp Tapawingo near Mishicot. The theme of the conference will be "Powers of the Mind."

Miss Linda Kustka, Brown County 4-H and youth agent, is advisor to the district 4-H leaders council. She and several other adults will help supervise the workshop, according to Barbara Halpin, Outagamie County youth agent.

The 4-H members from Outagamie County who will attend are, Candie Coenen, Valley 4-H; Randy Conrad, Chief Shioc; Shelley Curtiss, Countryside; Theresa Diermeier, Cicero Busy Bees; Fred Hosack, Chief Shioc; Tim Kettner, Helpful Hands; Sandy Koch, Clover Leaf; Sharon Koleske, Ellington; Janet Ritchie, Busy Badgers; Mark Voight, Clover Leaf; Denise Wichman, Wide Awake Forward; and Randy Wussow, Cicero Busy Bees.

The Go-Getter 4-H Club had an achievement night as part of their November meeting. Three films of interest were shown and the Christmas party of the club was scheduled for Dec. 9 at the Greenville Municipal Building. Club members will exchange gifts and will go caroling at St. Joseph Home, New London.

Dairy quotas no trade give-away

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Nixon administration is willing to put dairy import quotas on the international bargaining tables, "but we're not going to give them away," Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz said Tuesday.

Milk

Three-year-olds were listed by: G.F. DeKeyser, Neenah, 16,390 milk and 682 butterfat; Paul Lindner, Oshkosh, 17,150 milk and 615 butterfat and 14,540 milk and 612 butterfat; and Dodd, 15,840 milk with 586 butterfat;

Four-year-olds on the honor roster were from herds of: Dodd, 19,420 milk with 826 butterfat and 19,110 milk with 728 butterfat; Dobberke, 18,440 milk with 737 butterfat; Schultz, 18,510 milk and 702 butterfat; and William Overton, Oshkosh, 20,150 milk and 687 butterfat.

Aged cows were reported from the herds of Koepf, 19,980 milk with 792 butterfat; Phillip Neuschafer, 17,100 milk with 782 butterfat; Overton, 19,730 milk with 763 butterfat; Kermit Harrison, 18,420 milk with 741 butterfat and Neuschafer, 17,730 milk with 735 butterfat.

Harness also listed two Guernseys each two-years-old with high production. They had 10,670 milk with 515 butterfat and 11,320 milk with 504 butterfat.

Leaders

Wink and Mrs. Glen Hacker, both were from Forest Ever Ready Club. Victor Geiser, Pine Creek 4-H Club and Russell Gasch, Chilton Tip Top Club, also were cited Tuesday at the Swan Club, DePere.

Calumet County fair directors and stockholders will meet at 8 p.m. Dec. 8 in the courthouse assembly room, Chilton, to elect directors for three-year terms and officers for one-year terms.

Calumet County junior leaders who will participate in a winter workshop Dec. 7-9 at Camp Tapawingo, near Mishicot will be Frank Steiner, Dan Koehler, Paul Krueger, Mary Schmitz, Carol Brantmeier, Aggie Steiner, Julie Nikolai, Margaret Gries and Betty Ertl.

A Christmas party has been scheduled for Dec. 10 for Calumet County junior leaders, according to Charles P. Nikolai, Calumet County 4-H and youth agent.

The Ellington 4-H Club will conduct a Christmas party at 8 p.m. Dec. 13 at the Ellington Town Hall. Members will exchange gifts. Instead of caroling the members will visit a senior citizens home at a later date.

The next first aid session for Calumet Hill Patrol will be Dec. 8 at the Public Service in Chilton, according to Charles P. Nikolai, Calumet County 4-H and youth agent.

"I have taken a strong position in favor of the countervailing duties to avoid unfair competition in our markets," from foreign farmers whose governments subsidize their exports, Butz said. In remarks prepared for the National Milk Producers Federation, Butz predicted a bright future for dairy farmers higher prices and fewer competitors as high costs and other factors drive some out of the business.

He cited a recent USDA report that 1972 consumer dairyproduct consumption totaled $17.6 billion, up 5 per cent from 1971 and a reverse of "a 25-year downward trend."

He did not mention a report late last week that showed consumer resistance to higher prices and lower supplies combining to cause a 1.5 per cent decrease in September in per capita consumption from 1972.

"Looking ahead it is obvious that the best way to keep the industry profitable is by minimizing the participation of government, protecting the dairy industry against unfair dumping by other countries and by helping U.S. dairymen get increasing income in a free market," he said.

Farmers Union protests Milk shipping requests

MADISON — The Wisconsin Farmers Union has sharply attacked proposals by the United States Department of Agriculture that state dairy plants be required to increase milk sales to bottling plants.

Plants participating as "pool" shippers of milk have previously been required to ship 30 per cent of their milk under the Chicago Regional Milk Marketing Order for bottling. For agreeing to supply the market in shortage months the shippers receive payments to assist them in meeting market order competition for milk.

Recently, however, the agriculture department announced that it was considering exercising its authority to require plants to ship 10 per cent more to the market. The reason was primarily because of a shortage in milk caused by rising profits to cheese plants to utilize milk in manufacturing.

The Farmers Union has responded to the request for more bottling milk by it is unfair to farmers.

"If bottling plants need more milk for fluid distribution they can get it by offering a price that is equal or greater than that being obtained through other uses of the milk," said Stewart G. Huber, general manager of the Farmers Union Milk Co-op.

Huber filed the views of the organization with the agriculture department.

"There is no shortage of milk for fluid use in the Chicago regional market," he said. "Class I utilization (milk sold in beverage form) has not exceeded half the available milk during any month in the past year. It is clear that bottling plants can obtain adequate supplies by offering a higher price."

He called the plan "short-sighted," and said it would cause milk plants to lose money because they can profit more from making cheese than from selling milk for fluid use.

Kuhfuss blames federal policy for energy crisis

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah — Excessive government price controls that have made fossil fuels too much of a bargain were blamed here today for contributing to the energy crisis by William J. Kuhfuss, American Farm Bureau Federation president.

Kuhfuss appeared at the annual meeting of the Utah Farm Bureau Federation after making stops in Wyoming and Montana at annual meetings of the organization. He warned consumers in those states not to anticipate lower prices for food, especially red meat, because of high farm costs.

Kuhfuss said today the federal planners made the same mistake in price controls with energy that was made with beef.

"There is no doubt that continuing heavy demands have put pressures on existing energy supplies, but it is equally apparent that government actions have hurt rather than helped the problem," he said.

Farmers have been hurt by the federal price controls, he said. "Price controls have created distortions and disruptions for many commodities, as well as energy, and have resulted in shortages. This was the case in the imposition of the beef price freeze and government price fixing on fertilizers. Price controls recently were removed from fertilizers, but there is still a question as to whether there will be sufficient supplies for next year's planning," he said.

The Farm Bureau has repeatedly opposed price controls.

Kuhfuss said part of the reason for a shortage of natural gas is that the Federal Power Commission has for more than 15 years maintained artificially low prices for natural gas at the wellhead.

Earlier, speaking at Billings, Mont., he said farmers for years have produced food at near or below their cost of production and that with high farm costs nowadays there is little chance that food prices will decline. "Because of exports and record domestic demand, food prices are not likely to fall materially in the near future," he said.

Appearing before Farm Bureau members at Gillette, Wyo., he said that farm prices for meat have dropped and that the decline soon must be reflected in supermarkets. He cited statistics which showed that carcass-to-retail price spreads averaged 44.3 cents per retail pound in September — up from 33.8 cents in July and above the 37.3 cents of Aug., 1972.

Many service calls unnecessary

Between 20 and 30 per cent of all service calls on major appliances are unnecessary, according to Robert Payne, general service manager for the Maytag Co.

Appliance owners waste millions of dollars annually by failing to follow instructions or by neglecting to make a few simple checks before they call an appliance service technician to their home, he states.

Most instruction booklets supplied with major appliances have lists of things to check before calling a service technician. Using that checklist often can save inconvenience and the expense of a service call. And, equally important, according to Payne, it frees the service technician to make more calls to those who really need him.

When a laundry appliance fails to operate, Payne suggests the lid or door be checked to make certain it is completely closed. Laundry appliances have safety switches that prevent them from operating when a door is open.

The timer dial also can be a source of a nonstart. It should be advanced, pulled out or pushed in, as appropriate. On a dryer, the push buttons should be checked to make certain they are pushed all the way in. On some washers, push the reset button.

One of the most common reasons for an unnecessary service call is the appliance that is not plugged into a live outlet. If there is any doubt should, it be checked by plugging a small appliance such as a radio or lamp into the outlet.

Cause of a dead outlet can be anything from a line power failure to a simple burned-out fuse or tripped circuit breaker. If an automatic washer stops in the middle of a load, one cause could be an unbalanced load that has tripped the unbalance switch during spin. The load should be redistributed and the controls reset in this instance.

For those really concerned about cutting service costs, Payne suggests the concern should begin when shopping for the appliance. Though some brands have easier serviceability than others, in most instances the ease of service depends primarily on the place and manner in which the appliance is installed.

When buying a built-in dishwasher, for example, where only the front is exposed, front service access is important. If a determination can be made beforehand that the appliance will be installed in an area just large enough for the appliance itself, this information should be passed along to the salesman. The serviceability of a brand can save dollars since easy replacement of components reduces the cost of service.

Consumers often ask, "How can I get good service when I do need it?"

Payne answers that the time to ask this question is when the appliance is purchased. He says it's a wise purchaser who chooses a dealer who has an excellent service department, proudly tells about it and invites customers to talk to others about his service. His competitor may be willing to sell the same model at a lesser price, Payne points out, but the so-called bargain can turn out to be more expensive when it needs service later on.

For those who don't know of a dealer or service firm that is reliable, experienced and trained on a particular brand of appliance, Payne suggests a check of firms listed in the Yellow Pages under the manufacturer's trademark as authorized to service that brand.

When a person calls for service, he should determine the date and approximate time the service technician will come to the home. Often, the company can only designate the morning or afternoon since some calls end up taking more time than expected while others take much less. The important thing is for the customer to be home when the call is scheduled.

Sometimes, Payne admits, getting prompt service may be difficult. Understanding a few of the reasons may shed some light on the problems involved.

Appliance service work, Payne continues, is cyclical - it has peaks and valleys. And occasionally, during the peak period, the firm cannot give same-day service. This is due to the fact that if enough manpower were hired for these peak periods, there would not be a sufficient workload to keep them busy during the year. This, according to Payne, is one of the major problems in running a service business.

Metropolitan areas present some special problems for the service company. First there is the traffic problem. Then, in some cities, commercial vehicles are prohibited from using certain freeways. That means it takes longer to reach each destination.

In some housing areas in large cities, parking the service vehicle is often difficult, if not impossible. And since double parking is illegal, it may require two men to make the service call: one to man the truck and another to repair the appliance.

His collie is best man

Dear Ann Landers: When I first started to read your column I was sure you made up those letters. I couldn't believe people did those things. A straight reporting job out of Wellfleet, Mass., which I read today has convinced me that truth is indeed stranger than fiction.

It seems a socialite movie star was married in Cape Cod to the granddaughter of a famous dress designer. She was barefooted. He wore 15-year-old white buckskin shoes. His collie, Murray, was the best man. The couple announced before the wedding that they are expecting a baby.

What's going on? Or am I crazy?—Mystified In Massachusetts

Dear Mys: More people are abandoning tradition and doing their own thing.

One of the duties of the best man is to hand the bride's wedding ring to the groom. I wonder how Murray managed it. It appears that a dog is not only man's best friend, but on occasion can be friend's best man.

Dear Ann Landers: I picked my wife's brother up last night to drive him to a lodge meeting. We've been buddies since we played on the high school basketball team together. When he noticed a big dent in the rear of my car he asked what happened. I told him some creep hit me from behind and I haven't found time to take the car into the shop. His next question was, "Are you going to sue the guy for a back injury?"

I told him I had my seatbelt on and luckily I wasn't hurt. He gave me a look of disgust and muttered, "You're an idiot. With a smashed rear end like that you could claim a back injury and collect plenty. Nobody can prove your back wasn't hurt if you say you've got terrible pain."

I have no intention of following his advice because I don't believe in those rinky-dinks but I'd like to know if what he says is true. Wouldn't an injury show up on an X-ray? How about it?—Straight And Narrow

Dear S & N: Torn ligaments and pulled muscles don't show up on X-rays, but even so, it's not easy to fool the insurance company's examining physicians. They know every trick in the book, having witnessed them all a few hundred times. An astute doctor can tell a great deal by the way a person walks, stands, sits in a chair and gets up from a chair. Once the "patient" is tagged as a claim-faker he has a very difficult time getting any more coverage and that's a bad spot to be in.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm in my middle 20s and live several hundred miles away from my family. I am not married and am very pregnant. I won't explain here why it isn't feasible for my beloved to marry me at this time but we hope to make it legal next year.

My question is this: My mother plans to visit me in three weeks. I will be in my eighth month. Would it be kinder to write and tell her before she arrives (I'm sure it will be very upsetting), or should I wait and let her see for herself?—Happy But Not Content

Dear H. But Not C.: By all means prepare your mother in advance—by letter. It will be easier for her to read the news than to see it.

Confidential to Quo Vadis: Choose your own direction. How will he take it? The same way any other humble, self-effacing egomaniac would react to being dumped.

What's prudish? What's O.K.? If you aren't sure, you need some help. It's available in the booklet: "Necking and Petting—What Are the Limits?" Mail your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box

The ailing house Poured concrete crumbles

BY ROGER C. WHITMAN

Q: Our basement walls have areas where the poured concrete surface seems to crumble off in a powder. The floor is so constantly dusty I have to keep sweeping it up or it will be tracked upstairs. What will repair this? I would like to paint the floor and walls later. —Kenosha.

A: Give the walls and floor a good soaking treatment of a clear masonry sealer, or a masonry paint containing a sealer. You can get these at lumber yards, hardware stores.

Q: We are building a house and want to lay vinyl asbestos tile on the basement floor. The tile dealer assures me this particular type is okay for below grade. How long must I wait for the concrete to dry? —Columbus.

A: If you can restrain your impatience, three months should be ample drying time, under normal conditions. A month or two longer if the basement tends to be damp.

Q: My son purchased an older home with a gas mantle. The fireplace is not vented into the chimney. We're told that using natural gas in this would be dangerous, as too much carbon monoxide is formed. What about using bottled gas and putting in a separate vent? —Milwaukee.

A: As mentioned more than once before, I really vote against two or more heat sources sharing the same flue. I also vote against no vent at all. But with a separate vent and bottled gas, go to it.

West opened the queen of diamonds, and East took the ace. East returned the deuce of diamonds, and South won with the king.

South felt very comfortable about his contract, for it seemed that he would lose two diamonds and perhaps one trump. He drew a round of trumps with the ace, led a club to dummy's king and returned a trump toward his own hand.

Suddenly the sun stopped shining and the birds stopped singing. East discarded a club instead of playing a trump.

Now it was clear that South would lose two trump tricks. If he also lost two diamonds, he would go down.

There was only one chance for the contract. South simply had to try the heart finesse.

GAMBLE WINS

So South put up the king of spades on the second round of trumps and immediately returned his singleton heart for a finesse. Dummy's queen of hearts won the trick, and now declarer could cash the ace of hearts to discard his losing diamond. This assured the contract.

If the heart finesse lost, South would

In Israel, business is business

By EDITH M. LEDERER
Associated Press Writer

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — While rockets fell overhead during the latest Middle East war, women in underground shelters sewed coats and suits for one of Israel's top leather houses.

The designer of a sportswear line which features native bedouin cloth went house to house to convince her Israeli-Arab workers to come to work —and they did.

The founder of Israel's leading high fashion beachwear house sent cars to pick up workers stranded by the country's transportation crisis —and sent her models to the front to put on fashion shows for the soldiers.

It wasn't quite business as usual for Israel's fashion industry —but it was definitely business.

In almost every factory, the men went off to fight and the women took over running the show.

Ready to wear and textiles are Israel's third largest export, ranking behind diamonds and citrus fruits, and manufacturers were determined to fill every order on time —and to prove to the world that business is business, war or no war.

They didn't quite succeed but Adin Talbar, deputy director-general for foreign trade in the Ministry of Commerce and Industry, called their performance "astounding."

For the month of October, Israel had targeted $12 million in exports from the fashion industry. Talbar said manufacturers were able to deliver two-thirds of the goods worth $8 million.

Whether Israel felt its fashion and textiles export target of $150 million for 1973 remains to be seen —but Talbar and others think the fashion industry will come close. Last year, they exported $123 million worth of fashions and textiles.

When war broke out Oct. 16, the immigrant settlement of Migdal Haemek in the Jordan Valley where Israel's high-fashion leather house Bege-Or has its factory, was rocketed almost every night.

So, President Leslie Fulop moved the factory, its women workers, their children, teachers, seven nurses and hundreds of toys into a shelter where they stayed day and night until the U.N.-sponsored cease-fire.

"Our brothers, fathers and sons were dying and I kept asking myself, are we normal discussing leopard collars for our new coats?" he recalled. "I think I got the answer from our production manager who was called up the first day. He was a tank commander and he wrote us a letter from the front. 'It said, what you are doing has as much importance as what we do because you are the hope and security in our future. You bring in the dollars, francs and marks.' Fulop related.

With the "wonderful work" of the underground staff, Fulop said, Bege-Or met most of its orders —though the company paid 10 to 15 per cent fines for being late on a few.

At the beginning of the war, designer Rojy Ben-Yoseph whose bedouin style sports-clothes have become synonymous with Rikma, found she couldn't do "anything heroic —like discover oil wells."

So, she decided to keep the factory open "which wasn't so easy" because all her workers came from large families and were home worrying about their husbands and sons. She said she spent several days going house-to-house to convince them to return to work.

They did, she said, and Rikma met every export order for October "without being late" and cut enough fabric for November "so orders won't be late. Nothing is going to be late because of the war."

On Yom Kippur, Israel's haute couture designer Gideon Oberson was in New York en route to San Francisco for a showing of his collection at I. Magnin.

But the 30-year-old Italian-born Jew took the next plane back to Israel. At his factory in Ramat Gan, he found that every man except one cutter had been drafted —but again the women took over and all orders were on time.

When the war started, Lea Gottlieb cancelled a European trip and took over daily operation of Gortex, the company she founded more than 20 years ago which is now one of the world's largest exporters of high-fashion beachwear.

She arranged to have cars pick up some girls living in suburban communities where there was no bus service. She also arranged fashion shows for front line troops, wounded soldiers and wives of helicopter pilots.

Despite the problems, the gray-haired grandmother said: "We made double the export this October than we made in 1972. Then, it was $130,000. Last month it was $260,000. It's hard to believe we made it during the war, but we did."

Yes, Virginia, there's a crisis

There need not be a "darkout" this Christmas even though there is an energy crisis.

Conservation of energy during the holidays is a public duty, but it's not necessary to do without Christmas and the spirit that the holiday brings.

The Christmas Decorations Association, an association of public spirited business men, have formed an ad hoc committee to promote 10 tips to "Save Energy and Have a Merry Christmas."

Their suggestions for doing just that are:

1. This year, restrict the hours that you light your Christmas decorations to when you are at home.

2. Decorate your tree with miniature or tiny lights to save wattage. For example, power consumption of a normal miniature (35 light string) set is 4.6 watts, per set. A normal string of 15 larger bulbs burns 90 watts and the large bulbs most commonly used outdoors burn over 135 watts.

3. Small lights also cover twice as much area on your tree.

4. When trimming your tree, place shiny or reflective ornaments near the lights for a more illuminated look.

5. Use tinsel, and icicles for added glitter.

6. Make the "Tree Lighting" ceremony something special this year — and wait until Christmas Eve to make it a happening.

7. The same conservation approach should be taken for after Christmas. Keep the tree up with all its decorations until the 12th day of Christmas; remove or unplug a string a day. Also make it a happening; kids will love it.

8. When you light up your Christmas tree — lower the other lights in your room — it will look a lot prettier and conserve a great deal of energy. A 100 watt bulb, burns a 100 watts.

9. Use miniature lights outside, too — another energy saving device.

10. Please, don't use candles, unless they are in safe holders and away from combustibles. Candles are dangerous.

Seniors to vie for scholarship

The 20th annual Betty Crocker Search for Leadership in Family Living (formerly the Betty Crocker Search for American Homemakers of Tomorrow), a $111,000 college scholarship program, gets underway Tuesday.

More than 750,000 high school seniors in the Fox Valley area and throughout the country will join in written knowledge and attitude examinations to determine individual college scholarship awards of $500 to $5,000.

Male student eligibility for the educational program, initiated for the first time last year, has been made a permanent part of the competition.

Participation by both males and females, a reflection of increased emphasis on the mutually shared responsibility for family leadership in American culture today, is the reason behind the change in the program's title for the first time in 20 years.

Participating seniors will compete in a 50-minute examination prepared and graded by Science Research Associates, Chicago, which is responsible for all judging and selection of winners. The local winner will receive a specially designed award from the sponsor, and will, together with other school winners, remain in the running for state and national honors.

State winners — one from each state and the District of Columbia — will each be awarded a $1,500 scholarship. Chosen in judging that centers on performance in the written examination, state Family Leaders of Tomorrow also will earn for their schools a 20-volume reference work, "The Annals of America," from Encyclopaedia Britannica Educational Corp. Second-ranking participants in each state will receive $500 college grants.

On April 21-26 of next year, the 51 state Leaders in Family Living will gather in Washington, D.C. for an expense-paid educational tour of the capital city and Minneapolis, Minn. Personal observation and interviews of the state winners during the tour will be added factors in the selection of the national winner and three runners-up.

Scholarships awarded to the four national winners will be for $5,000, $4,000, $3,000 and $2,000.

For the third successive year, a $1,000 Nutrition Scholarship will be awarded. Recipient of this award will be the participating student who is planning a college major in nutrition or a related field, ranks among the highest in his or her state on the total Search examina-

Students take stock in education

By BILL GARDNER
Associated Press Writer

CLAREMONT, Calif. (AP) — Nine Scripps College coeds given $50,000 to invest for their college have learned a lot in the last eight months. They've earned, too.

The girls figure the $50,000 they began with has grown to $53,000 under their guidance. The money was donated to the small, all-woman liberal arts college last February by a Scripps alumna, Mrs. J. Stanley Johnson, of Altadena, Calif.

"Women as well as men can benefit from direct financial experience and responsibility," Mrs. Johnson said, explaining her gift. "Many college graduates have little knowledge of what influences the market place and how it operates."

The nine coeds who were elected to manage the fund handled the money very gingerly at first.

"We spent the first three months just studying the stock market," said Ann Farner, president of the fund.

"We didn't have that much knowledge and we thought it would be better to be conservative," added Barbara Townsend, the fund's secretary.

It has been a bad year for the stock market, except for rallies in July, September and October. Most of those gains have been lost since, and analysts say the market is at the bottom of a dismal year.

Despite whispered tips from friends, brokers and their own parents, the girls started out scientifically. They split the Standard & Poor's manual into 10-page sections with each responsible for researching the companies in her section.

The requirement that six of the nine girls agree on any purchase makes for spirited weekly meetings.

"We usually have a big fight," laughed Miss Farner.

"Oh, let's just buy it!" someone blurted out after a heated give-and-take at the last meeting.

"We did," said Miss Farner. "And when it was all over, we thought 'Ohhhh, we just spent $20,000!'"

Their best buy has been Schlumberger Ltd. They bought 65 shares in May for 88¢. It closed the other day at 132¢. "I asked our broker why they thought it went up so fast and they said they didn't have any idea," Miss Farner added.

They took a loss on Walt Disney, but avoided a bigger loss. They bought 65 shares at 92¢ and sold at 80 and the stock continued to fall.

This month they bought 175 shares of Singer at 50¢.

"We all love their sewing machines," Miss Farner remarked.

She went on to explain that Singer's price-earnings ratio of 9-1 is very favorable and that the year's high was tion and, from those meeting these two criteria, achieves the top score on the test's nutrition items.

More than nine million students have been enrolled in the Betty Crocker Search since its beginning in the 1954-55 school year. With this year's grants, total scholarships will exceed $2 million.

73, compared to a low of 44. And Singer makes the new point-of-sale registers for Sears and Montgomery Ward, she added.

Miss Farner said they expected Singer to go to at least 75.

The girls say they are gaining confidence and are looking around for more speculative stocks. So far they've only invested in well-known firms.

Except for the Disney purchase, they've had a golden touch. They even paid a visit to their broker in downtown Los Angeles last week.

"I loved it," said Miss Farner. "Everybody's moving so fast."

Ground rules set down by Mrs. Johnson provide that the girls can't buy on margin, sell short or invest more than 20 per cent of their fund in any one stock. And 5 per cent of the fund is drained off annually for student grant and loan programs.

The nine are Miss Farner of Washington, D.C.; Miss Townsend of Northridge, Calif.; Liza Colton of Salt Lake City, Utah; Sandra Lynn Critchell of Claremont; Maria Espinoza of Huntington Beach, Calif.; Judy Smith of Tustin, Calif.; Chancey Bailey of Middletown, Ohio; Vicki Vaughn of Phoenix, Ariz.; and Patti Luckner of Mercer Island, Wash.

Women assist needy

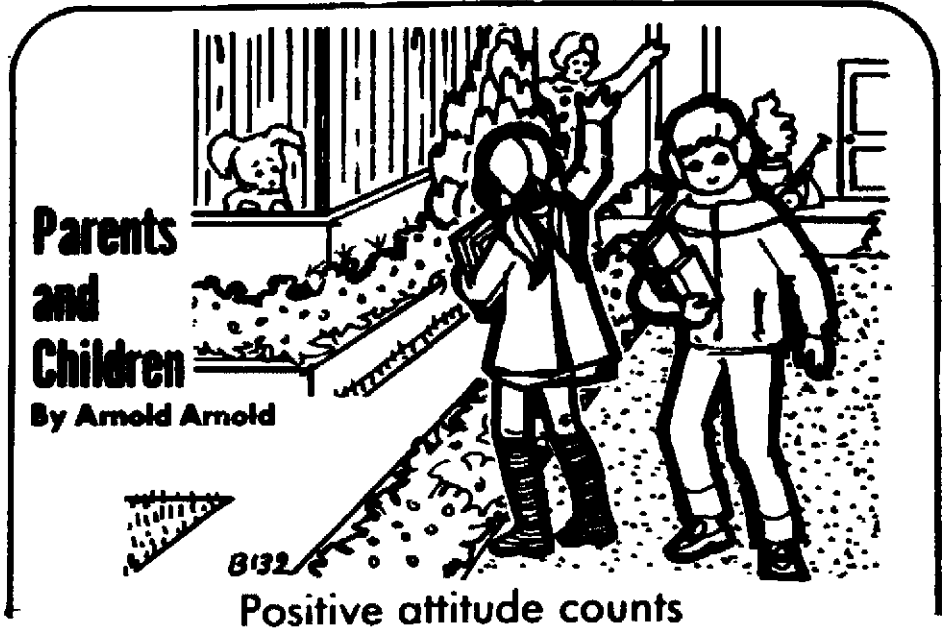

Clothing and canned goods collected Monday evening by Genevieve Paulson Circle of The King's Daughters will be sent to a family selected by the Salvation Army at Christmas time.

The items collected will be supplemented with additional food and clothing to be purchased by the circle.

Around the World kits will be assembled and distributed under the direction of chairman, Mrs. Peter Petros. Support also was voted for Meals on Wheels clients in need of financial assistance.

Guest speaker at Monday's meeting Leigh Gisvold, Fox Valley Technical Institute, presented a film entitled "Love," narrated by Leo Buscaglia, associate professor at the University of Southern California. According to Gisvold, love is almost totally ignored by educators, scientists and psychologists. Gisvold recently published a book entitled "Love" in which he discusses the phenomenon as it relates to day to day living, and identifies the barriers to love, suggesting means of overcoming them.

Mrs. Robert Barlament will be hostess for the annual Christmas party Dec. 8.

Positive attitude counts

You've probably heard a lot about the importance of positive thinking and a positive mental attitude. People in a happy, positive frame of mind are likely to accomplish more, feel better and be more welcome companions than people who are feeling depressed. This goes for kids, too.

The way the kids feel when they go off to school in the morning has a lot to do with how well they do in class. Parents sometimes forget that kids are people. When they are tense, they don't function as well as when they are relaxed. An upsetting morning confrontation with parents, brothers or sisters will guarantee that your child will have disciplinary and learning problems for the rest of the day. Such a child will either be withdrawn and sullen in a class, or lash out and fight with other kids. He'll be puzzled by his own hostility and aggressiveness, but he won't know how to help or stop himself.

Most teachers can tell which children have an unhappy home life, whose parents have fights first thing in the morning, and which kids come to class after a pleasant breakfast and a friendly goodbye from Mom and Dad. A child who arrives at school in an unhappy frame of mind is an unnecessary burden to himself, his teacher, and to the rest of the class. The teacher and the other kids will resent disruptions he is likely to cause. The child's classmates, in defending themselves against attack, add to the disciplinary problems that detract from learn. The teacher may have to take time to calm such a tense child, instead of devoting that time to teaching.

If your child needs discipline, correction or a bawling out, wait until after school. You'll then have a chance to get things straightened out and fully discussed with time to clear the air. But in the morning, with just a few minutes to spare till the school bus comes, a family fight is bound to end with things left unsaid on both sides. You may feel you've fulfilled your parental duty, but your child will think you picked this time deliberately so he has little or no chance to defend himself. And that's not fair.

So if you want your child to do well time in school, make sure he gets up in to have a leisurely breakfast. Keep things pleasant, even if he deserves chastisement. It pays to give each child a happy start for his school day, from kindergarten through high school. He'll make better friends on the way to school. And when he gets there he'll be ready to learn and concentrate, instead of sulking about real or imagined grievances.

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Female antibodies may attack sperm

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I had a checkup to see why I could not get pregnant, and my husband was checked, too. We were told that if we were each married to someone else, we both could have had children years ago. We have been married 11 years.

I asked the doctor to explain and he said if I got a college education I might understand it all. Can you help us know what is wrong with us? We have two adopted children but would love to have one of our own. —Mrs. F.

There are cases such as yours, with tests showing nothing wrong with either wife or husband, yet no pregnancy. It has been found that some women produce antibodies antagonistic to the husband's sperm. If you've read this column for any length of time, you are familiar with antibodies — particles which attack specific things.

Antibodies created by measles or other diseases protect you from having the same disease again; antibodies are created also by being vaccinated. Antibodies which attack foreign tissues are the root of the problem in transplants of hearts, kidneys or such organs.

In your case, for reasons unknown, you could have antibodies which attack your husband's sperm and prevent it from starting a pregnancy.

To overcome this, it is sometimes possible to keep these antibodies separate from the sperm for a substantial length of time, in the hope that the antibodies will subside and disappear, at least temporarily.

This is done by using a condom or "rubber" in sexual relations for from six to 12 months. In that time the antibodies should disappear and pregnancy is likely, or at any rate possible, until the antibodies appear again.

The condom should be used because it is necessary that the sperm not come in contact with vaginal tissues. Such contact would only stir up the formation of more of the antibodies.

Thus other usual methods of birth control will not work in a case like this —with the pill, diaphragm, coil or other method, there would still be such contact.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is it a medical routine for expectant mothers to be X-rayed about one month before giving birth? Can this cause any such dangerous effects as sterilization of the baby? —Y.R.

It is not routine.

It is done for various reasons, but should not be done without a specific purpose. Examples of need for such an X ray might be to determine whether more than one fetus is present, to determine the fetal age (how far development has proceeded) or possibly whether the fetus is still alive.

X ray in the last month would not affect the baby; done early in pregnancy, birth defects could result. In your case, I see nothing to fear.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Does heavy whisky and beer drinking make a man's sex life slow down? —W.W.

Yes, because alcohol is a depressant.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have been using Benemid regularly with satisfactory results but have been cautioned against using that and aspirin at the same time. Evidently there is some harmful reaction, the nature of which is not clear to me. —B.F.P. Jr.

Benemid is excellent in controlling gout, but aspirin should not be used at the same time because the aspirin destroys the effectiveness of the Benemid.

Troubled with gout? To learn of new treatment for this cruel and painful disease, write to Thosteson in care of The Post-Crescent for a copy of his booklet, "Gout — the Modern Way to Stop It." Appleton man to stand trial on gun charges WAUPACA — A trial before a six-man jury has been set for Dec. 28 for a 21-year-old Appleton man charged with the reckless use of a firearm and the negligent use of a weapon.

The defendant, William Rice, 1103½ N. Lawe St., was charged after an Oct. 21 incident in the Town of Union. A shotgun alleged to have been held by Rice discharged, and pellets from the gun struck the head of a hunting companion, Thomas Sawall, 77 10th St., Clintonville.

Sawall was treated at Clintonville Community Hospital, where, reportedly, 14 pellets were removed from his head and stitches were required to close wounds in the right side of his head.

Rice, Sawall and Douglas Passehl, 60 W. First St., Clintonville, were hunting squirrels at the time of the incident.

A criminal complaint against Rice was filed Nov. 9 by Warden Jack A. Kunuth, state Department of Natural Resources, who investigated the incident. Rice has pleaded innocent to the charges.

Rice appeared Monday before Acting Judge A. Don Zwickey in County Court Branch 2.

The defendant is free on $500 bond.

James N. Franz, 20, 2301 N. Clark St., was fined $380 and his driver's was suspended for 120 days after he was found guilty Monday of five traffic violations.

Four of the violations stemmed from a brief chase involving police and Franz' motorcycle Aug. 16 on N. Clark Street. Those charges included attempting to elude, non-registration of a vehicle, speedometer and mirror defects.

The other charge, for failure to display registration, was from a Sept. 15 arrest on W. Wisconsin Avenue.

The sentence was imposed after a trial before Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2.

Richard L. Smart, 22, 2415 Hickory Lane, Oshkosh, has been fined $175 and ordered to attend group dynamics traffic safety school. He was found guilty of driving while intoxicated Oct. 5 in Appleton.

He pleaded no contest before Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2.

The cases of two Lawrence University students, charged with a break-in last June at the school's conservatory, were dismissed Monday by Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2.

Schaefer had withheld guilty findings in the cases of the two men, William L. Topp and Mark A. Sternburg, both 21, providing they performed volunteer service at the school. University officials reported that the men had been working in a tutoring program, so Schaefer dismissed the charges.

The two had been accused of taking two record turntables valued at $285 and extensively damaging a window during the break-in.

Gary L. Kettenhoven, 20, 941 Williams St., Menasha, found guilty recently of driving a car without the owner's consent, was placed on probation Monday for two years.

Appearing before Circuit Court Judge Gordon Myse, Kettenhoven was ordered to spend the first three months of that period in the Outagamie County jail, with Huber Law privileges.

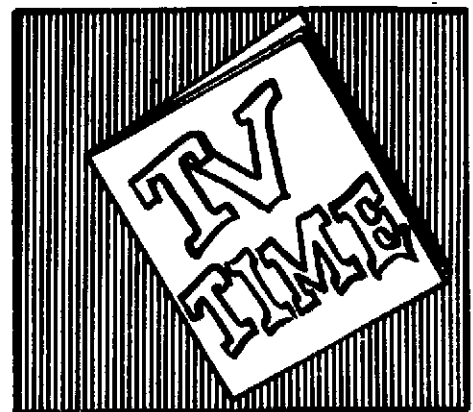

In addition, Kettenhoven was ordered to make $12 restitution to the vehicle's owner, John A. Marx, 856 Reddin Ave., Neenah.

Kettenhoven took the vehicle from the Menasha branch of Oshkosh Auto Parts Dec. 8. The car later was found in Appleton. In ordering the probation, Myse stayed a two-year state prison term for the defendant.

Jesse F. Rangle, 19, Kenosha, was fined $100 and sentenced to 10 days in the Outagamie County jail after he was found guilty Tuesday of driving after revocation and failing to stop for a stop sign.

Both charges stemmed from an Oct. 21 arrest at U.S. 41 and County Trunk E, Town of Grand Chute. The sentence was imposed by Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2.

Heard of buffalo being sold here?

Is buffalo at home on your range? If not, it could be. A north side Appleton supermarket is having its once-a-year sale of buffalo meat and it's going fast.

Richard Sweetalla, journeyman meatcutter at the Red Owl store on W. Wisconsin Avenue, said the store recently received three head of buffalo and when that supply runs out, that's the end of buffalo meat until next year.

Marie Sandvik of the chain's Minneapolis office said Red Owl and one other chain are about the only grocery stores that offer buffalo meat.

She said the meat supply comes from South Dakota each year about this time, when the government thins its buffalo herds. Although she said she has never tried it, she has heard it "tastes pretty good."

Sweetalla has tried it and says he likes it, but wouldn't say it's better than beef. "It's something different. Almost everyone who has tried it has liked it. It tastes sweeter than beef" but otherwise is fairly similar, he said.

He said most people try it just to say they've tried it and because it is available for only a short time each year. The store has carried the meat at this time for several years and people expect it.

Prices are slightly higher than beef prices. Prices for buffalo cuts in the meat counter Thursday were $1.49 a pound for chuck roast, $1.99 a pound for chuck steak, $1.49 a pound for rump roast and $1.59 a pound for stew balls.

CESA 8 approves detachment

KAUKAUNA — With no debate, the Cooperative Educational Service Agency 8 school committee Thursday night issued an order granting the appeal of approximately 200 residents of a portion of the Kaukauna school district to be detached from that district and assigned to the Little Chute district.

The order is to take effect July 1, 1974 and involves an area located east, west and north of the present high school. The area comprises portions of Little Chute and the Town of VandenBroek.

Kaukauna school officials are expected to appeal to the state Department of Public Instruction, which has the power to override the school committee action.

Three years ago, a similar request for detachment from Kaukauna and assignment to Little Chute was approved by the committee, but its action was overturned on the state level. Earlier this year, another petition, involving a larger area than the most recent petition, was circulated and in a referendum those favoring reassignment to Little Chute were defeated by a group favoring the Kaukauna system.

Approximately 80 students are involved in the transfer, but major reason behind both districts desiring the area in question is the Little Chute industrial park which provides a tax base for the district without adding to the student population.

The Kaukauna board of education is expected to approve a petition for reconsideration to the state at its December meeting.

Green Lake judge assigned to Juno case

CHILTON — Green Lake County Judge David C. Willis has been assigned to hear criminal court proceedings involving retired Calumet County Police Capt. Victor Juno.

The assignment was made by the state court administrator's office after local county and circuit court judges disqualified themselves. No date was set for Juno's next court appearance.

Juno, 56, of Brillion, is free on $2,000 bond. The State Department of Justice, on Nov. 14, charged him with one count of misconduct in public office. He has not yet entered a plea to the charge which carries a maximum penalty of $500 or a year in prison or both.

State agents allege that he kept $500 of county police parking fine money for his own use. Juno retired about a week before the charge was filed.

County might seek energy from waste

BY DON CASTONIA
Post-Crescent staff writer

Area industrial leaders will be invited to meet with county officials Dec. 13 to explore the potential of energy recovery from the shredded waste that will come out of the county's solid waste shredder next summer.

One firm, Thilmany Pulp & Paper Co., already is converting one of its boilers to permit the use of refuse for fuel. And the Menasha Electric Utility has indicated interest in the potential of refuse as a fuel to partly replace coal at its steam generating plant.

The energy recovery aspect of the shredder waste came as an outgrowth of a zoning committee meeting Thursday on the feasibility of using a sand pit as a landfill site for the waste.

County Executive Alvin Woehler flatly said he would block any move to purchase land for a landfill and pushed the potential of leasing the pit to give the county short-term landfill capability.

The county had been approached by John Calnin, who operates the pit, on the leasing possibility.

Woehler contended that with the unsettled situation involving the potential state takeover of solid waste disposal and the energy recovery potential, the county may not have any landfill need for more than a few years.

John Reinhardt, head of the solid waste section of the state Department of Natural Resources, who met with the committee and viewed the pit at Broadway and French Road, agreed that it could be used, but that it would be expensive and would need extensive engineering work.

Approval to go ahead with the engineering work will be sought from the county board Dec. 11. Reinhardt compared the engineering to that of "any other public works project."

One of the requirements for use of the pit would be to line it with clay to prevent any leachate from going through into the water table. Reinhardt estimated, based on Madison's experience, that lining could cost up to $5,000 an acre.

The pit is about 40 acres, but the proposal would be to use about 10 acres initially. The clay would come from adjacent land which Calnin wants to

Mayor's aide resigns for Oshkosh post

Appleton's first administrative assistant to the mayor will leave his job after less than a year to take a position with the City of Oshkosh.

David Wendtland, 29, has announced his resignation, effective Jan. 5. He will become Oshkosh's community development director on Jan. 7.

Mayor James Sutherland said in a press release that Wendtland "will be difficult to replace." He said that the job is, by nature, a "low-visibility job" that makes it hard for the public to evaluate his performance.

"For me it is easy, and I can say that Dave Wendtland meant far more to this community than many realize," said Sutherland. "He will be greatly missed."

Sutherland said he will begin seeking a successor to the $15,500 a year job immediately. Two-thirds of Wendtland's first-year salary came from a federal grant, and officials are hopeful of getting a similar grant okayed for 1974.

The job of mayor's administrative assistant attracted opposition before Wendtland even took his post on Feb. 9. Several aldermen feel that the position is unwarranted, and charge that the assistant has assumed duties that should be taken care of by the mayor himself.

They have never attacked Wendtland's performance.

An effort was made to eliminate the job from the 1974 budget earlier this month, but that failed in an overwhelming vote in favor of maintaining the position.

"I feel that there's a vast amount of work that has to be done prior to policy decisions being made, and to not fill this position after I leave would be a gross mistake," Wendtland said in an interview today.

The former acting executive director of the East Central Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission emphasized that his departure had nothing to do with the attacks on the position leveled by some aldermen.

"It's just an opportunity that came along that I couldn't pass up," said the assistant.

Wendtland will get slightly over $7,000 in his new job. The post had been vacant for several weeks, and Wendtland said he applied for it in hopes of taking on a more challenging job.

Wendtland will exercise control over the city's principal planner, grants coordinator and all inspectors.

"He has our congratulations and best wishes as he moves on to a position of new challenges and professional advancement," said Sutherland.

Wendtland said he has several tasks he wants to complete here before the move, including the completion of park fund applications for Einstein, McKinley and Mason Street park sites and the annual report required by the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) on his job. HUD is the agency that pays two-thirds of the administrative assistant's salary.

City step closer to having sewage commission

BY FRANK CHURCH
Post-Crescent staff writer

The Appleton Finance Committee wants the mayor to appoint another study committee, this one to decide if and when a separate wastewater commission should be formed to manage the sewage treatment plant.

Ald. Edward Maloney (9th) told the committee Thursday that such a commission was needed to take the increasingly complex task of sewage treatment out of the hands of the City Council.

"I don't think we're handling this thing as a council," said Maloney, adding that the setting of rate structures ought to be taken away from politics of city hall and placed under a commission whose actions would have to be approved by the state Public Service Commission.

"I'm all for getting this thing off my back," said Ald. Rayburn Kaufman, reflecting the general reaction of the committee.

But while committee members agreed that a commission should someday be formed, they disagreed on timing. Ald. Ralph West (20th), for example) said the council should maintain control over the operation until decisions are made on how to build the $23 million plant addition.

West said decisions like whether or not to build an incinerator are political decisions, and a move to create a commission at this time would be premature.

The committee ended by agreeing that a commission should probably be formed, but willing to have a mayor-appointed study committee investigate the technical and timing aspects of it.

Even Maloney, who has in the past complained that too many study committees are appointed, said he favored the approach. He added that he wouldn't be a "bit surprised" to see such a committee come in with a recommendation to form a commission right away.

One of Maloney's goals in forming a commission would be to separate the treatment plant's budget from the rest of the city's spending package, and insure that all bonds sold for expanding the plant are revenue rather than general obligation.

General obligation bonds — like those sold for school expansion and street construction — are retired out of city tax or special assessment revenues. Revenue bonds, on the other hand, are retired out of revenues. In this case, the revenues would come from the sewer user fee.

Finance Director Reynold Running said the city would have to raise at least $325,000 more from its sewer user fee just to become eligible to sell revenue bonds for the plant expansion now.

Some $125,000 will have to be added to the fee next year to pay additional operating costs that the city has budgeted for the user fee. Another $200,000 would have to be raised from the user fee, Running said, to create a special revenue fund required in order to sell the bonds.

Sewer user fee bills mailed out at the end of this month are carrying a hefty increase approved by the City Council last summer but delayed until now because the increase was not allowed under federal wage-price controls.

Total expected revenues from the present fee in 1974 are $715,350. These revenues, and the fees, will mushroom dramatically as greater operating costs and plant expansion costs are added in the years ahead.

Running has advised that the city sell short-term notes totaling $6.66 million to cover its share of the $23 million plant expansion project, then place those costs on a revenue bond after the project is completed.

Oshkosh, which is also constructing a sewage plant addition, has sold about $5 million in short-term notes to pay contractors while it awaits federal funding for its project. Its share of the plant cost is only $2.8 million, but it must cover construction costs until the federal aid comes through.

An Oshkosh official said today, however, that the city will sell either general obligation or revenue bonds to finance its share early next year. The plant is slated for completion in 1975. The delay in selling bonds, he said, was to allow the city time to gain experience with the sewer user fee it initiated in March.

"I'm sympathetic to a commission."

Committee for airport to be topic

Makeup of a 25-member citizens committee to work with consultants on the Outagamie County Airport master plan will be discussed by the airport committee next Thursday.

Supv. Richard Jahnke, airport committee chairman, said the consultants Howard, Needles, Tammen and Bergendoff, have indicated they would like the citizen committee completed by the end of December.

The citizen group, required by the Federal Aviation Administration, would aid the planners in determining the future direction of airport development.

Jahnke also reported to the committee today that the architects are still aiming for an April 1 completion of the new terminal building. But, Jahnke said, "I don't know how they can possibly meet that deadline."

Construction had been held up for more than a month by delays in the delivery of the structural steel

Appleton transit panel approves application for state bus funds

The Appleton Transit Commission Thursday night approved the final application for state assistance for the Appleton bus system.

The application will be filed with the Department of Transportation tonight and seeks $124,660 for the city-subsidized Appleton City Transit, Inc.

Dave Wendtland, assistant to Mayor James Sutherland, noted that the negotiations with the state will probably begin in middle or late December. Wendtland did a major part of the application draft and his efforts were praised by the commission at the meeting.

The $124,660 is two-thirds of the deficit the commission has estimated for 1974 operation. If the city gets the full two-thirds, $95,448 will have to be covered by local tax monies.

State Rep. Tobias Roth, R-Appleton, appeared at the meeting to ask what support the commission needed in the legislature and to offer information on a planning and demonstration grant program which might enable the city to obtain more state funds.

He appeared optimistic about the continued expansion of mass transit funds and said he "wouldn't let the commission down but had to do what's necessary."

Roth explained some of the details of the new state mass transit program which provides funds for projects demonstrating their effectiveness in meeting the program's objectives.

Roth outlined those objectives as reducing urban vehicular traffic, meeting total urban transportation needs at minimum cost and reducing urban highway and parking facility requirements.

He noted that the department will evaluate applications for portions of the $2 million Department of Transportation grant on basically six points. They include degree of innovation, potential for application throughout the state, compatibility with the existing transit system, ability to continue beyond the demonstration phase, potential for federal funding and evidence of local governmental and public support.

The committee discussed the possibility of arranging transportation to area plants and schools as possibilities for grant aid but took no further action.

Empty showcase

Everyone is making sacrifices these days because of the energy crisis, and the students at Madison Junior High are no exception. They have blacked out their showcase to save on lights, and added a few helpful suggestion with white paper, on how to save on energy in other ways. Jane Russell, left, and Connie Miller, two students who would normally be decorating the case with exhibits, look at empty case.

Kissinger's tactics irk British

LONDON (AP) — Offended British officials are meeting Henry A. Kissinger's criticism of European behavior during the October Arab-Israeli war with biting attacks on his style of diplomacy.

Nothing is being said publicly beyond the laconic remark of a Foreign Office spokesman. "We prefer to look forward, not backward."

But in the privacy of their offices, government men are letting loose a cascade of complaints against the secretary of state almost unprecedented since World War II.

Kissinger infuriated the British when he said at a news conference on Nov. 22 that those European allies who had been consulted most about U. S. policy in the Middle East turned out to be the least cooperative. The British were not named, but they felt they were being attacked by implication.

British officials feel that that Kissinger is most skillful in negotiating with adversaries like the Russians and Chinese. They feel he needs reminding that the European allies are not yet a monolithic group with a single identity and a unified foreign policy. They consider his call for a "new Atlantic Charter" that would somehow embrace Japan and his talk of 1973 as the "Year of Europe" in American foreign policy ill conceived, gimmicky and premature.

After the October war started, Kissinger's failure to consult the European allies before certain major American moves led them to suspect that he was trying to exclude them from a region which they consider more important to them than to the Americans.

Britain, France and some other European states consider U.S. backing for Israel a mistaken policy. They feel it imperils Western Europe's oil supplies, lets Russia pose as the champion of the Arab cause and failed to persuade the Israelis to withdraw from the Arab lands they occupied in the 1967 war. This latter, in the British view, is the flashpoint that started the October war.

In listing their grievances, British officials take pains to stress that none are fundamental. All can be resolved with improved communications and better crisis management methods, they say. Kissinger's attendance at next month's meeting of the North Atlantic council of foreign ministers and his subsequent trip to London will be one occasion for discussing this.

Valuable comic books stolen in California

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — "Spider-Man," "Captain Marvel" and about $1,500 worth of other vintage comic books about heroic crime fighters have been stolen from the Peoples Comics store here.

Police said about 1,000 comics, ranging in value from $25 to $40 each, were stolen Saturday night from the Peoples Comics. Also gone were comic books glorifying the exploits of the "Avengers," "Fantastic Four," "Iron Man" and "Thor."

Pioneer 10 probe shows Jupiter 'upside down'

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. (AP) — The U.S. Pioneer 10 space probe has revealed that Jupiter, magnetically speaking, is an upside down planet.

If you could fly to Jupiter with a compass and stand among its swirling clouds or float upon the oceans of liquid hydrogen believed there, the compass needle would point south. On earth it would point north.

Scientists monitoring Pioneer 10 said Thursday the discovery that Jupiter's magnetic field is oriented towards its south pole is a significant finding that confirms what astronomers had suspected for several years based on the study of radio noise from the planet.

Pioneer 10 was about 2.7 million miles from Jupiter early today, traveling at 36,200 miles per hour. The 570-pound unmanned spacecraft is being tugged harder and harder by the planet's gravity, which is 2.6 times greater than earth's.

Controllers said Pioneer continued to perform flawlessly, returning data to earth across 500 million miles of space.

Scientists said colored pictures of the planet with its concentric bands of multicolored clouds already equal the detail of pictures obtained by earth telescopes on a typical evening of viewing.

By Saturday or Sunday, when Pioneer moves within one million miles of the turbulent planet, scientists expect the images to be superior to anything seen from earth.

Four states are shaken by tremors

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Brief earth tremors hit portions of four Southern states early today, frightening hundreds of persons. There were no reports of injuries or major damage.

The National Weather Service in Atlanta said tremors were reported in Tennessee, South Carolina, North Carolina and Georgia. Officials said they struck at 2:48 a.m. and lasted about 15 seconds.

Dishes rattled and sleeping residents were awakened by the tremors. Dozens of persons called sheriff's departments and state police to report the phenomenon.

In North Carolina, sheriff's departments reported the tremor was felt in Buncombe, Haywood and Henderson counties. In South Carolina, reports came from Spartanburg, Greenville and Pickens counties.

"It sure was a tremor of some sort. I felt it myself," said Knox County, Tenn., Sheriff's Deputy Jack Martin.

"There have been no injuries reported yet. I've checked all around the area and surrounding counties. They all felt it, but no one got hurt," Martin said.

Federal Aviation Administration officials said they believed the tremor was centered halfway between Maryville and Johnson City in Tennessee.

Tennessee Highway Patrol trooper Dean Norman said the highway patrol's Knoxville office had been swamped with calls about the tremor. He said people had called from practically every county in Upper East Tennessee.

White and Hall counties in north Georgia reported tremors. Several callers in Atlanta said they had been awakened by the movement.

Tooters just as valuable as shooters

FT. BENNING, Ga. (AP) — Are tooters as important as shooters to the national defense?

Army M. Sgt. Clinton Edwards of Ft. Benning's 283rd Band thinks they are. He responded Thursday to a statement by Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., who demanded proof that "piccolo players are vital to the national defense."

Aspin complained to the Defense Department about more than 100 military musicians being granted special re-enlistment bonuses because their jobs had been designated "critical military skills."

Edwards, an accomplished piccolo player who saw combat in both Korea and Vietnam, recalled a 1968 battle at Dak To in Vietnam.

"I was with the 4th Infantry Division and they decided to show the enemy that we were secure. So we set up on top of a hill and had grilled steaks and dancing girls—and the place was bristling all around with enemy troops."

"We had a 16-piece stage band playing jazz right on top of the hill. I could see the psychological effect it had on the men," the sergeant said.

"That's why I was flutist around Vietnam—to give that fighting man a feeling of security, peace and stability."

He paused a moment, reflecting on the historic tradition of military bands, and said, "Think of what the piper meant to the British Army."

What gas can do

Two New York City firemen stand by as a car used to demonstrate why gasoline doesn't belong in the trunks of cars goes up in flames. 3 brothers arrested in murder of 4 teen-agers

SIoux FALLS, S.D. (AP) — Three brothers have been apprehended and charged with murder in the shotgun slayings of four Sioux Falls teen-agers Nov. 17, authorities reported today.

Charged with four counts of murder each were Alan E. Fryer, 29, David L. Fryer, 24, and James R. Fryer, 21, all from the Sioux Falls area.

Ike Skinner of the Iowa attorney general's office said the arrests were made this morning at the brothers' three houses in the area.

He said they would be arraigned later today in Sioux Falls. The next legal step would be extradition proceedings to remove the men to Iowa, since the slayings occurred in Lyon County, Iowa, 10 miles southeast of Sioux Falls.

Authorities would release no details of the investigation leading to the arrests. Nor would they discuss a possible motive for the killings.

"We have to assure these three a fair trial," Skinner said.

Officials said an unidentified 13-year-old girl who witnessed the shootings was still in protective custody.

The murdered youths were Stewart Baade, 18; his brother, Dana, 14; Mike Hadrath, 15, and Roger Essem, 17. All were from Sioux Falls.

Their bodies were found Nov. 18 in Gitchie Manitou Park in northwest Iowa.

Budget proposal would reduce village tax rate

COMBINED LOCKS — If the proposed 1974 budget is adopted at a public hearing scheduled for 7 p.m. Tuesday at the village hall, taxpayers will experience a tax rate decrease for the fourth straight year.

The proposed budget calls for expenditures of $1,435,105 of which $927,785 is to be raised through tax levy whereas the 1973 budget amounted to $1,501,049 with $1,061,946 raised through tax levy. Gross tax rate was $48 per $1,000 assessed valuation in 1973 with a state tax credit of $3.92 marking the net rate $44.08.

The proposed rate for 1974 was set at $41.94 per $1,000 and the estimated state tax credit, for which the village is still awaiting certification, was set at $5.20 per $1,000 for a net tax rate of $36.74.

The proposed budget is approximately 17 per cent lower than 1973, due mainly to a reduction in the school budget, according to Village President Marvin Schumacher who praised school officials for their efforts in helping to reduce costs to taxpayers.

The net tax rate for 1974 of $36.74 is about a 25 per cent reduction from the tax rate of 1971 when the net rate was $48.93. In 1972 it dropped to $47.42 and in 1973 to $44.08.

Expenditures in the proposed budget include $2,000 for administration, unchanged from last year; welfare and ordinance costs increased from $22,500 to $26,550 and police and fire expense up from $10,340 to $11,370.

Declines were noted in the public works budget from $232,000 in 1973 to $205,900 in 1974 and the park and playground expense from $31,340 to $15,350 in 1974. Development of a new softball diamond with lights was included in the 1973 park program whereas less expenditures are anticipated in 1974 under the village's five-year park plan.

The building and grounds budget for 1974 shows a significant jump from $79,700 to $219,400. This is the area in which the village contemplates using federal revenue sharing funds for purchase of land and development of a new village hall.

Personnel expense was increased from $148,868 in 1973 to $161,100 in 1974 and general government costs were reduced from $264,176 to $227,982. Major decrease was in school or education costs which declined from $710,125 to $565,453.

A comparison of receipts other than tax levy for the two years shows special assessments up from $7,200 to $11,220; licenses and permits increased from $1,045 to $2,000; grants and aids both federal and state up from $254,110 to $313,200; commercial revenues up from $18,500 to $20,900 and miscellaneous and surplus up from $138,248 to $160,000.

Former Combined Locks pastor dies at Kaukauna

KAUKAUNA — The Rev. John De Wild, 92, long-time pastor of St. Paul Catholic Church, Combined Locks, died Thursday at the St. Paul Home here, where he had been living since his retirement from the active ministry 11 years ago.

The funeral mass will be at 11 a.m. Monday with the Most Rev. Aloysius Wycislo, bishop, the main celebrant. A wake service will be at 8 p.m. Sunday.

De Wild is a native of Uden, Holland, where he began his preparation for the priesthood with the Crosier Fathers.

He came to this country in 1908 and continued his studies at St. Norbert College, De Pere, and St. Francis Seminary, Milwaukee. He was ordained in 1915.

The new priest served as an assistant at St. John, Little Chute, and St. Mary, Kaukauna. His first pastoral appointment came a year after ordination when he was named to serve St. Joseph said committee Chairman Delmar Schwallier (16th), but he didn't want to see one until the facility was completed and operating. Until then, he said, the council should maintain control over plant operation.

The study committee called for would be the 12th since Mayor James Sutherland took office in 1970. Some of them have finished their work, while others, like this one, have yet to be approved by the City Council.

The recommendation for formation of this and another mayor-appointed committee to study park and recreation board jurisdiction and membership will go to the council for approval next week.

In other action Thursday, the committee removed the Appleton Bible Chapel, 2600 N. Mason St., from the tax rolls after Assessor George Schwarzbauer had placed it there for leasing space to another church group.

An attorney for the chapel told the committee that space was being leased to the Church of the Nazarene while that religious group was building a church on College Avenue. The fact that it is being leased to another religious group on a temporary basis makes it eligible for tax exempt status, he said, according to past opinions from the attorney general.

Schwarzbauer supported returning the church to tax exempt status.

The committee also asked Sutherland to develop guidelines for city employees filing meal expense accounts, after evidence of abuse has surfaced.

Employees are allowed up to $10 per day for meals when they travel to out-of-town meetings. Running said some have filed $10 meal expense accounts for just one meal.

The committee wants the mayor to specify limits for each meal or otherwise make sure that employees do not abuse the expense.

Police & fire beat

KIMBERLY — Otto Kral, Green Bay, an investigator for the Chicago and North Western Railway, has reported to police that someone apparently entered a boxcar on a track siding between Nov. 17 and 25 and stole wood crating used for skids valued at $400.

KIMBERLY — Richard R. Arts, 22, route 1, Kaukauna, was taken by ambulance to St. Elizabeth Hospital, Appleton, about 7:50 p.m. Wednesday for treatment of underdetermined injuries sustained when the car he was driving west on Kimberly Avenue left the road and struck two trees.

New director

Most of the visitors came on their own, but some had to be carried to the open house at the Pastoral Counseling Center Thursday night. The event introduced to the community the new director, the Rev. Bedford Hines III,

Debate tournament Saturday at Kimberly to attract 64 teams

KIMBERLY — The high school will be host to its fourth annual invitational debate tournament Saturday. Sixty-four teams, representing 24 high schools, will participate.

Trophies will be presented to the top three teams competing on the varsity, junior varsity and novice levels, according to director A. L. Peckham. The topic is, "Resolved: That the federal government should provide a program to employ all employable U.S. citizens living in poverty."

Schools represented will be Appleton high schools East and West, Oshkosh West, West Bend East, Green Bay East and West, Sheboygan North and South, Seymour, New London, Clintonville, Little Wolf, Peshtigo, Ashwaubenon, De Pere Penning, Oconto Falls, Winneconne, Berlin, Ripon, St. Lawrence Seminary, Dodgeand, Port Washington, Merrill and Kimberly.

Little Chute accepts $27,351 low bid on water line installation

LITTLE CHUTE — The village board Tuesday night accepted low bid of Bower Brothers Construction Co., Kaukauna, $27,351, for installation of a 12-inch water line.

Nine bids were received, with the highest being $42,750. The line will run from Coolidge Avenue across Chicago and North Western Railway tracks to County Trunk OO and then easterly to Buchanan Street.

The new installation will not only boost a present 16 inch line in the industrial park but will also complete a water line loop system in the St. Aubin and Crestview plats thus eliminating dead ends in the system. Work is to get under way within five days and expected to be completed within 30 days.

Police & fire beat

KAUKAUNA — Firemen were called to flush gasoline from the street at Second Street and Main Avenue following an accident about 4:25 p.m. Tuesday.

Changes in bus routes topic for Kimberly board

KIMBERLY — Village President Eugene Schelfhout has invited a representative of Fox River Bus Lines, Inc., to the 7 p.m. Monday meeting of the village board to discuss the possibility of changing bus routes in the community.

Schelfhout said he took the action after receiving complaints of accidents or near accidents involving parked cars and pedestrians as the bus turns from Kimberly Avenue onto Sidney Street, one of the oldest and narrowest streets in the village.

"The route in use now is the same as it was in World War II when the service was designed to bring many Kimberly-Clark workers to the doors of the mill," said Schelfhout. He said this route was laid out to help conserve gas during the war. He believed that with the current shortage, a revised route could do even more to save fuel and improve service to bus users.

Citizens interested in bus service may appear at Monday's meeting to voice opinions on routes and time schedules.

A new routing under consideration would have buses enter the village on Kimberly Avenue, turn onto Marcella Street to Third Street, proceed east on Third to Washington Avenue and then north on Washington back to Kimberly Avenue for the return trip to Appleton.

Custodial pact talks at impasse

Negotiators for the Appleton public schools and the custodial-maintenance union reached an impasse Thursday night on calendar 1974 contract talks and apparently will end up in a fact-finding session with the Wisconsin Employment Relations Commission.

A WERC mediator met with the two groups twice this month, including a 2 1/2-hour session Thursday night, but could not bring about an agreement. The two sides have been meeting since last April.

William Sandoval, business representative for the union, Local 73 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, said he believed the union membership would seek fact finding, although he noted the WERC mediator had indicated she was willing to mediate more.

Dr. Kenneth Johnston, director of administrative services, said the mediator had declared an impasse after the two sides couldn't reach agreement on the monetary issues.

The school district has offered a two cents per hour wage increase in its wage consolidation package on top of additional hourly increases ranging from 12 to 19 cents per hour. The consolidation would involve reducing the number of wage scales from 16 to five and categorize persons according to physical capability and job performed.

Sandoval said the union would accept the consolidation, but wanted 10 cents more per hour, instead of two cents. Johnston said the school would be willing to compromise somewhere between the two and 10 cents, but the union wasn't.

The bargaining unit represents about 100 maintenance and custodial persons in the 21 school buildings, plus Morgan Administration Building and the former Jackson School.

Mental health group elects new president

Steve Rastall, director of the Outagamie County Health Center's Portal House Day Hospital, was elected president of the Outagamie County Mental Health Association Wednesday night at the organization's annual meeting. Rastall, former vice president of the group, succeeds Clare Kiepe, health center volunteer coordinator, as president. Other new officers are: Larry Canavera, vice president; Jean Miller, secretary; and Russell Johns, treasurer. New members elected to the board of directors are: Chris Calder, Doris Cobb, Barbara Crozier, Ruth Cypert, James Dana, Diane Freehill, Marge Gerlach, Linda Hartz, John Stahmer and Duane Stevens.

Other members of the board are: Paul Authier, Canavera, Johns, Elsie Johnson, Kiepe, Jane LaPin, Miller, Kay O'Brien, Rastall, Mark Rothe and Krishna Vemuri.

John Wylie, chairman of the new comprehensive mental health board, told association members and guests that his board "was not threatening the current setup" of mental health programs in the county.

He said it would be the board's duties to establish current and future guidelines and criteria for services in the fields of mental health, drug abuse, alcoholism and developmental disabilities.

Police & fire beat

Lynn H. Reynolds, 1818 E. John St., reported vandalism to his two-ton truck while it was parked in the 1000 block of S. Oneida Street between Nov. 17 and Sunday.

He told police someone smashed two windows along the windshield. Damage was estimated at $100.

The growth of Wittman Field

NEENAH — More progress has occurred at Wittman Field in the past five years than at anytime in its 46-year history.

A description of that growth was the essence of an address Thursday before the Rotary Club by Michael Brock, airport manager.

After bumping along conservatively for many years on a day-to-day basis, the airport's operations are now self-sustaining, new terminal facilities have been in operation for almost two years and each year the airport hosts the biggest experimental aircraft show in the nation, Brock said.

During a question and answer session which followed, Brock said although he hopes there will be a resolve by the end of the year, the restaurant at Wittman Field is still vacant.

The county and a finance company have been involved in a court action to secure some of the property still inside the restaurant, former "House of Hereford," Brock said.

The addition of a second commercial airline at Wittman Field is another point still undecided, Brock told Rotarians. An airline company, which he declined to name, has been making overtures from time to time about occupying the second slot but nothing has been formalized, Brock said.

The last contact he had with the firm was about a year ago, Brock told a reporter.

North Central Airlines, which began operations at Wittman Field in 1948, is the sole commercial airline serving Oshkosh.

Brock said a second airline would become seriously interested only if a market for its services — flights to cities not served by North Central, for instance — could be assured.

Ninety per cent of Oshkosh's embarking passengers are bound for Chicago, Brock said, and North Central meets that need.

Brock said that a master plan drafted in the late 1960's, at a cost of $20,000 gave Wittman Field its major thrust forward by setting priorities and policies. Policy matters regarding finances and other important features of airport operations were decided by a large citizens committee Brock said.

The Experimental Aircraft Association signed a 15-year lease with Wittman Field and the first show was performed in 1970. It has boomed every year since.

Brock, prior to coming to Oshkosh, was assistant manager in charge of operations at Logan International Airport in Boston, Mass. He flew for 11 years as a member of the Coast Guard Academy.

Talk on environment

If you want to know something, go to an expert. The theory held true for the advanced biology class at Appleton High School-West, which invited a guest speaker to talk about environmental problems and hopes. George W. Mead II, chairman of the board of Consolidated Paper, Wisconsin Rapids, spoke to the group on conservation. Mead has been working with the Trees for Tomorrow program, along with West's science instructor, Charles Scribner. (Post-Crescent photo)

Joint session Monday on user fees, metering

NEENAH-MENASHA — A joint meeting of the two city governments with the sewerage commission and Consoer Townsend Associates has been scheduled for 6:30 p.m., Monday at the Neenah city hall.

Aldermen on both councils proposed the joint meeting last week, in an effort to prepare for changes in sewer user fees resulting from industrial metering and sampling, and to get better understanding of the plant expansion. The industrial measurements are supposed to start in December, and the cost split between the cities is expected to change when enough data is collected. That would coincide with the letting of contracts for what is expected to be a $27 million project, in another three months.

The Neenah finance committee decided today to defer the question of lowering Neenah's residential user fee until the Monday night meeting. Ald. Robert Troyer this week asked the finance panel to investigate the 25 cents rate per 1,000 gallons of metered water, saying it was a "gross overcharge" compared to the actual cost of treatment.

Courts

A 34-year-old Menasha man had until today to make a $360 cash payment and resume $40 per week support payments or face a 90-day county jail term for contempt of court relating to a nonsupport action.

The man, Leonard Motto, 508 Seventh St., was given the alternative when he appeared before Judge Urban P. Van Susteren in Outagamie County Court Branch 1.

Motto was charged with accumulating a $523 arrearage in payments for the support of his 5-year-old son. The mother and son live in Kimberly. The couple was divorced in 1969.

Constantines moving

LONDON (AP) — Ex-King Constantine and his wife plan to move into a Victorian mansion about 20 miles from London, according to the Daily Express.

They have lived mostly in Rome since Constantine was ousted by a Greek military coup in 1968. Recently they have been staying at London's Claridge Hotel. The paper said Constantine was not immediately available for comment.

Singer Stoner at Pendulum through Sunday

Singer Geoffrey Stoner, whose first album has been released nationally by Ovation Records, is appearing at Appleton's Pendulum through Sunday night.

The album, "Watch Out!," is the result of 18 years of experience as a performer, since Stoner began singing in a super market as a 10-year-old kid in the Philadelphia area. He and two other youngsters were working as delivery boys. One day, the three started singing a hit tune in the middle of the grocery store and people came over to see what was happening. "All of a sudden," said Stoner, "this old guy named Sarge whipped off his hat and went around collecting. We split $3 and I thought, 'Hey, you can do all right singing.'"

Following the trio's grocery store successes, the boys were three-time winners on "Ted Mack's Original Amateur Hour" until they were beaten by "some dude playin' accordion and harmonica, and it was back to the street corner and the nickels and dimes."

Stoner tried boxing (he's 6-3, 240 pounds), sold brushes door-to-door, washed dishes, worked construction, shined shoes and ran a rehabilitation center in Philadelphia, all the time singing and trying to make enough money as an entertainer to support himself.

After 18 years of ups and downs, Stoner has his first shot at national attention with his new album, which he feels reflects years of development.

Is the true story true?

8-10 — Channel 5 — "Frankenstein: The True Story" may or may not be true, but it is much different from the old horror movies and will hold you enthralled. The first half (it will be concluded tomorrow) shows you how Dr. Frankenstein (Leonard Whiting) and the diabolical Dr. Clerval (David McCallum) set about collecting bits and pieces of bodies to make a man. The creature (Michael Sarrazin) is beautiful and lovable — at first. This was shot in England and took seven months to film. It's good enough to be a theatrical film. The fine cast also includes James Mason, Agnes Moorehead, Margaret Leighton, Ralph Richardson and John Gielgud.

7-7:30 — Channels 2-7 — Elaine Fusco (Peggy Pope) is not one to gamble so when her paper money bets turn out to be consistent winners, the entire staff of "Calucci's Department" puts real money on her hunches. James Coco has the title role with regulars Candy Azara and Bill Lazarus.

7-7:30 — Channel 5 — Fred (Redd Foxx) gets greedy again on "Sanford and Son" when he invites his friend Grady (Whitman Mayor) to move in and become a boarder, because Fred wants those 60 clams a month. But Grady is a nuisance and you can even figure out how Fred will get rid of him.

7:30-8 — Channels 2-7 — The "Roll Out!" crew teams up to protect Sergeant Bryant (Mel Stewart) from Calvilli's disciplinary measures when Bryant's efforts to support the Red Ball drivers puts his perfect record in jeopardy.

7:30-8 — Channel 5 — "The Girl With Something Extra" is concerned with Sally's (Field) young niece, a tomboy. John (Davidson) wants to turn her into a young lady but nature takes care of that in a story that may shock a few viewers.

8:30-9 — Channels 9-11 — "Adam's Rib" is amusing as it deals with the triangle of Adam, Amanda and Kip (Ken Howard, Blythe Danner and Ed Winter). Amanda insists that Kip is a friend of both and even bets that he would side with Adam were they to argue.

9-10 — Channels 9-11 — "Love, American Style" takes advantage of the fact that novelist Jacqueline Susann's characters are supposedly based on real life people and comes up with a funny episode in which Martha Raye shows up to berate Jackie, who plays herself, for using Martha's husband as a romantic prototype.

State man killed

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A Milwaukee collision raised Wisconsin's 1973 traffic fatality toll to 1,060 today compared with 1,077 on the same date a year ago.

Jeffrey Reyes, 19, of Milwaukee died Thursday of injuries received Nov. 18 when his car collided with another car.

Paper clips make Indian head picture

BY CAPPY DICK

Accumulate a big supply of used paper clips. Not only will they be useful to hold papers together, but they also can be used to make an Indian head picture like the one in the adjoining illustration

The first step in making such a portrait is to outline the profile lightly with pencil on cardboard or posterboard. The next step is to use pliers to straighten out some of the clips and bend them into curves to outline the Indian's forehead, nose, chin, ear, eye, cheekbone, throat and headband. Attach these clips to the cardboard with glue. Apply it sparingly and carefully to avoid smears

Finally create the feather headdress with paper clips glued side by side and end to end as in the picture.

When you have completed the portrait display it on your desk or on the wall of your room

Tomorrow: A mini-triangle made of a discarded calendar!

The Board met pursuant to adjournment and was called to order by Chairman DeLoatch at 7:30 p.m. The Clerk called the roll; Members present: Rose Schroeder, Weiss, Schreier, Wussow, Higgins, Schreier, Müller, Driessen, Lewandowski, LaPin, Dietz, Fischer, Austin, Karras, Rehtfeldt, Rios, Lentz, Kuska, Williams, Van Dyke, Gonsack, Kovanough, DeLoatch, DeBruin, Kraus, George, Messnessy, Timmon, Julius, Reed, Brockman, Cammen, Bobbitt, Kasparek, Janke. Members absent: Johnnie, Merzin, Weverberg, Salazar. Retzlaff, 37 present 5 absent. The Chairman's request that Supervisor Solvings be excused from today's meeting, Supervisor Swenberg and Retzlaff for the afternoon, and Supervisor Boyd for 1½ hours of the morning was confirmed by the Board.

The invocation was offered by Reverend Maynard Bremer, First Congregational Church, Appleton. A moment of Silence to the Flag.

Supervisor Higgins moved to accept the reading of the minutes of the meeting of September 26, and that they be approved as recorded.

The Board has made during 1973. Among the accomplishments made by the E.C.W.R.P.C., Mr. Willey stated that their studies of 1980 population and on Fox Valley Area Transportation. The County Executive submitted an oral report his 1974 Education Budget to the Supervisors indicated that the 1974 tax rate would be decreased by approximately 39 cents per $1,000 of the equalized valuation of all property in the County. He explained that the County cannot observe next year's operating costs by increasing expenditures. The Executive briefly went through the revenues listed by departments in the Budget.

Supervisor Wussow moved to recess for 10 minutes. The Board reconvened at 3:15 p.m. The Clerk called the roll: all present, 2 absent.

Chairman DeLoatch asked the County Executive to delay further discussion on the Budget, to permit the Board to recognize Dr. George Boyd of Kaukauna, a former Trustee of the Riverview Sanatorium.

The Sergeant-at-Arms escorted Dr. Boyd to the front of the room. Supervisor Müller presented Dr. Boyd on the outstanding service he gave to Outagamie County and the general public, while also being a member of the Board.

SPECIAL ORDER TO CALL FOR A VOTE.
The following Special Orders of Business were scheduled by the Board Chairman:
1) 7:30 a.m. — Tuesday, October 9, 1973 — Roy Willey, Executive Director of the East Central Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission.
2) 7:40 a.m. — Tuesday, October 9, 1973 — County Executive's presentation of his 1974 Annual Budget.
3) 2:30 p.m. — Tuesday, October 9, 1973 — Presentation of Citation for Distinguished Service to Dr. George Bayle, a member of the Oshkosh County Riverview Sanatorium's Board of Trustees.
10:00 a.m. — Wed., October 10, 1973 — Arlo Paul, Vice Chairman.
The County Executive resumed his deliberations in accepting Dr. Bayle with a Citation of Appreciation in accepting the Certificate. Dr. Bayle thanked the present and past County Boards for the cooperation they gave the institution and the Riverview Sanatorium. The Doctor told the Board Members that he was honored in having been a successor to the faithful duties given to the institution by his late father, who had been influential in the founding of the Riverview Sanatorium. He urged the County Board to keep the Sanatorium open, stating that there was a great need for its continued operation.
The County Executive resumed his deliberations

Energy crisis affects sports

BY HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

The nation's energy crisis doesn't stop at your neighborhood gas station or your living room thermostat.

It's likely to reach beyond right into your recreation time and your occupation with the world of sports.

For example, with gasoline in short supply, you might choose to use your quota for more important trips than a ride out to the ball park to watch the local team play.

That possibility hasn't been lost on sports administrators and the subject is being studied on several fronts. It is due for at least a cursory examination at the baseball meetings in Houston next week.

Baseball, of course, could be directly affected because so many games are played each season at night with artificial lights.

The California Angels announced this week that they would reduce the number of games played under the lights in Anaheim by 12.3 per cent next season.

"If they tell us we can't play night ball because of the electrical power drain, we can't exist," said Calvin Griffith, president of the Minnesota Twins. "From a business standpoint, we simply cannot play during the day. We couldn't even pay our hospital insurance with what we'd draw with all-day baseball."

There is also the matter of air travel and the cutbacks of flights because the fuel shortage. Baseball is considering returning to train transportation for short trips. Trains provided the main source of transportation for clubs before expansion to the West Coast in 1958. Planes, of course, would still be used for cross-country travel.

Football isn't as directly concerned because there is less frequent travel and most games are played during the day.

The golf circuit depends heavily on air travel for players to get from tournament to tournament. Many expressed concern over the problem.

Basketball and hockey teams also do a majority of their travel on charter air planes and the cutbacks have those sports worried too.

Like baseball, hockey plays virtually its entire schedule at night with artificial lighting and is dependent on power supplies to keep ice surfaces refrigerated.

Considerable attention has been directed at auto racing where, after all, the chief attraction is cars chasing around motor raceway tracks, burning fuel. John Cooper, executive secretary of the National Motorsports Committee, bristles at the criticism and says auto racing fuel use is "insignificant compared to the total consumption."

Because it takes gas to reach slopes most ski resorts are likely to feel the energy pinch earliest. The Sunday ban on the sale of gas particularly irked resort owners. There are plans being drawn up in the Northeast and West to arrange for car pools so skiers can still reach their destinations.

Steelers will activate quarterback Bradshaw

PITTSBURGH (AP) —The Pittsburgh Steelers said Thursday quarterback Terry Bradshaw, given the green light to start throwing the ball with authority, will be activated for Monday night's game with Miami but will not start.

Bradshaw has been out of action since suffering a partial shoulder separation a month ago.

Coach Chuck Noll says thirdstring quarterback Joe Gilliam will start the game and Bradshaw will be his backup.

Terry Hanratty, who suffered a severe wrist sprain last week in Pittsburgh's 21-16 loss to Cleveland has not practiced this week and probably will be deactivated for the nationally televised game against the Dolphins.

Viking season opens

Carroll College and Carthage College, the weak sisters of the CCIW (Collegiate Conference of Illinois and Wisconsin) are the type of fare a team likes to fatten up on.

Lawrence University basketball coach Russ Ullsperger hopes his team can just get healthy on them. The Vikings finished each of the past two seasons with 3-18 records so opponents generally look on them with a gleam in their eyes.

"We feel we're ready," Ullsperger, a first-year LU coach, said. "It's been a long month of practice without any competition and we're ready."

Both Carroll (Ullsperger's alma mater) and Carthage are in circumstances similar to Lawrence's. Carroll was 2-14 in each of the last two years in the CCIW, while Carthage was just one spot above in the standings.

Lawrence opens its season Friday night at Carroll and will play Carthage at 7:30 p.m. Saturday at Alexander Gym.

"I know both of those teams are looking to posting a .500 season, too," Ullsperger said. "Our first five have done a really good job in practice. I've been trying to get a close-knit group and it seems to be taking hold."

Freshman Tim Kelley, 6-6 pivot from Appleton (East), will be the sole newcomer to the starting lineup. Returning starters are Doug Fyfe, 6-4 sophomore from Palatine, Ill.; Rob Currie, East Orange, N.J.; Jerry Percak, Deerfield, Ill., and Quincy Rogers, Milwaukee, Wis. Currie is the only senior on the team.

Junior Tom Brown, freshman Mark Faust and sophomore Steve Sims are expected to see extended service.

"We really need these games," Ullsperger said. "We've had a long month of practice. I hope to get the guys psyched up for both games."

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Predicted initial effects of the energy crisis on Wisconsin sports teams center on air travel problems, particularly for Milwaukee's baseball Brewers and basketball Bucks.

Tom Maminski, Milwaukee representative of the airline which handles the Brewers' chartered flights to other American League cities, said Thursday the charters will be sharply curtailed.

"They will be chartering only 20 per cent of the time this season," Kaminski said. "Where they normally flew 50 charters a season, they now will have 10 to 12 this season."

"They will have to do a lot of hustling to make commercial flights, and they could even use trains on some short eastern hops," he told the Milwaukee Sentinel.

He said he recommended to Commissioner Bowie Kuhn and other baseball officials that teams schedule no night games on dates when they plan to leave a given city to accommodate curtailed airline schedules.

Kaminski said the Brewers might find themselves stranded in airports up to seven hours.

"Baseball is the real problem," he said. "It is here and will be a rude awakening for everybody within the next two weeks. The players have been pretty well pampered. Now they'll know what it's like to be regular passengers."

The Bucks have commercial flights booked only through December, their travel agent, Miss Wilhelmina Hutchinson, said.

"Frankly, I do anticipate problems in January when the airlines are scheduled to announce which flights should be cancelled," she said. "I've worked out a schedule for January which gives them three alternate schedules."

The Green Bay Packers' only road game remaining this season involves a bus trip to Chicago. But Kaminski said commercial flights, rather than charter, for the National Football League club next season is a "strong possibility."

"Where there is direct service from Milwaukee to such cities as Detroit, Chicago and Minneapolis, there should be no problems with charters," he said. "On longer trips, the Packers may have to bus to Milwaukee first from Green Bay, and then catch a commercial flight."

No travel problem is foreseen for the University of Wisconsin basketball or hockey teams, or Marquette University's basketball team.

Wisconsin Electric Power Co. said illumination of County Stadium and the Milwaukee Arena should be no problem.

"Night baseball games in the summer do not come at peak times," a company spokesman said. "The peak is around 2 p.m. because of air conditioning."

Veteran Bob Reynolds waived by Patriots

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — Offensive tackle Bob Reynolds, an 11-year National Football League veteran, appears to have reached the end of the line.

Reynolds, 34, was placed on waivers Thursday by the New England Patriots, only the second team he has played for as a pro.

Reynolds was an all-star selection three times in nine years with the St. Louis Cardinals before joining the Patriots in 1972. He was hobbled by recurring leg ailments this season.

Saints' North emphasizes emotion

Lions played against him while I was at Detroit, so I knew what he could do. And he's really helped us.

"We also brought in Jubilee Dunbar, a wide receiver off the San Francisco taxi squad and he's played real well for us. And we also picked up John Beasley, the tight end who had been put on waivers by the Vikings. He caught 12 passes against San Diego.

"And we were lucky to pick up Joe Profit, a running back, from Atlanta, in a trade. We also traded with the Packers for Len Garrett. He's played a lot—in fact he was starting until Beasley came—and he's doing a fine job for us on special team.

"Plus we got Jerry Moore, a defensive back, from the Bears and he started last week. I guess there are 17 new faces in all.

"My philosophy," North noted, "is we'll pick up anybody we think is better than what we have. We'll continue to do that.

"I feel the people we've claimed and traded for have really helped us. Of course, you have to be lucky when you trade."

The Saints' new leader is emphatic about his basic approach.

"I tell our players it's an emotional game and you can't play it unless you are emotional. Hell, I'm emotional myself. I get upset. And I don't want anybody around who is not emotional."

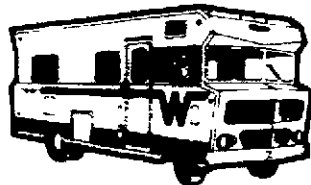

Making an overall appraisal of his troops, North appended, "We have a lot of good football players. Like everybody else, we just need more."

"The attitude is good—they enjoy practice and playing. I'm not saying we're going to beat anybody, but we're getting a good effort."

Pleased with the progress of third year quarterback Archie Manning, North reported, "Archie has played real well the last seven or eight games. He's like Tagge—he can run as well as throw."

Alabama, Irish 4 TD favorites

BY JOHN NELSON

Associated Press Sports Writer

Alabama Coach Paul "Bear" Bryant admits he's coming into Saturday's meeting with Auburn "kind of blindfolded" by the Tigers' new Veer offense.

But he's been working this week to shed the blindfolds so that Alabama, 10-0, will not have to face the untidy prospect of meeting Notre Dame in the Sugar Bowl Dec. 31 with a sullied record.

"This is the most important game of the year for a lot of reasons for us," the Crimson Tide coach says. "We've got to concentrate on winning the state championship and get our minds off of anything else."

While No. 1 Alabama meets Auburn on national television, Ara Parseghian's fifth-ranked Irish face the University of Miami, Fla., Hurricanes at night. Ironically, both Notre Dame, 9-0, and Alabama are four-touchdown favorites.

The oddsmakers have made Alabama, which beat Miami 43-13 earlier this season, a one-touchdown pick pver the Irish in the Sugar Bowl.

Also on national television Saturday will be the traditional Army-Navy game at Philadelphia.

Other day games Saturday — the final day of regular season action in college football — include No. 2 Oklahoma at Oklahoma State, Vanderbilt at No. 19 Tennessee, Florida State at Florida, Georgia Tech at Georgia, Boston College at Holy Cross, Baylor at Rice and Texas Christian at Southern Methodist.

Saturday night contests include No. 8 Louisiana State at Tulane, Tulsa at No. 14 Houston, Iowa State at San Diego, Utah at Hawaii and Brigham Young at Texas-El Paso.

In the NAIA Division II championships, Glenville, W. Va., faces Northwestern, Iowa, at Huntington, W. Va.

Elon meets LaCrosse at Burlington, N.C., and Langston meets Abilene Christian in the NAIA Division I semifinals.

In the NCAA Division III semifinals, San Diego University is at Wittenberg, and Juniata plays Bridgeport.

In the NCAA Division II quarterfinals, Grambling meets Delaware in the Boardwalk Bowl at Atlantic City, N.J.; Lehigh meets Western Kentucky at Bowling Green; Western Illinois plays Louisiana Tech at Ruston, and South Dakota travels to Boise State.

Navy is a 17-point favorite to defeat the Army cadets, who have not won in nine games.

George Walsh, in his first year as coach at the Naval Academy, says he'd "rather win this one than any other. It's a game we can point to, a game we can get a little more excited about."

But Welsh doesn't believe the 17-point spread.

"I wouldn't bet on Navy at 17," he said.

Rams last week, but not so well against San Diego the week before," he added. "Overall, though, we're doing real good."

What he was asked, had he done to turn it around?

Chuckling, North replied, "I don't know whether we had 'em turned around After San Diego beat me a week ago. I wasn't so sure.

"I took over late, of course, with a new staff and a little different philosophy. I felt the players had to get to know me, and I didn't know them.

"But now, I think we are playing about as well as we can play. And, if we have turned it around, 'hat's the way we have done it."

New personnel has been a major factor in the Saints' resurgence, who already have doubled last year's victory production—they now are 4-7—with three games remaining.

"We changed a lot of people," North said. "We brought in Jess Phillips, the running back, from Cincinnati. The

Bucks duel Celtics tonight

MILWAUKEE (AP)—At 6-foot-9, Dave Cowens is supposed to be too small to play center in the National Basketball Association.

But the carrot topped pivotman is the Boston Celtic the Milwaukee Bucks have to stop here tonight if they hope to win the rematch of the teams with the league's two best records.

The Celtics (16-3) are riding a 12 game winning streak, including a 105-90 victory over Milwaukee Nov. 16 in Boston to snap a 13-game winning streak of the Bucks.

Jim Schultz hits 279; Connell counts 665

Jim Schultz came within a 4-pin of perfection in the Super Dozen League at the Super Bowl by slamming a 279 game Thursday night.

Schultz, who had a national honor count earlier this season in the same league, rolled his first six strikes in a row and then left the 4-pin on a solid hit in the seventh. He followed that up with five more strikes. For series Jim finished with a 656.

Larry Connell pounded a 256 game and 665 series also in the Super Dozen League for leading series. Jim Rogers had a 654 total and Gene Roscoe had a 257 line.

In the Grocers League at the 41 Bowl last night, Don Houdek hit a 230 game and 650 series to lead the way. Bill Matey had a league high 233 game.

George Schroeder unloaded a 274 game and 664 series to set the pace in the 41 Bowl Classic League last night. Ron Gilkey had a 267 game and 661 series, Terry Wegner fired 226-226-658 and Chuck Bayer had 257-653.

Broncos, Bengals, Saints picked by AP's Thomas

Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Can the Dallas Cowboys tame the Denver Broncos? That's one of the biggest questions this weekend in the National Football League.

The upstart Broncos are in first place in the American Conference West. Yes, first place with only three games left on the regular-season schedule.

And the Cowboys are in second place in the National Conference East, one game behind the Washington Redskins.

Dallas (7-4) at Denver (6-3-2) — On paper, the Cowboys are a much better team than the Broncos — both offensively and defensively. Probably even better than the three-point edge that the odds-makers give Dallas. We don't think enough emphasis has been given to Denver's desire, which should make the Broncos this weekend's darlings of destiny. So ... BRONCOS 24, COWBOYS 22.

Minnesota (10-1) at Cincinnati (7-4) — A must game for Cincinnati, which could move into a first-place tie in the AFC Central if both Pittsburgh and Cleveland lose. The Vikings, favored by seven, have nothing to gain either way. Let's go with desire once more. BENGALS 28, VIKINGS 24.

Pittsburgh (8-3) at Miami (10-1) — The Steelers may have desire, but their No. 1 and No. 2 quarterbacks are out of action against the defending Super Bowl champions for the Monday night Mouth Bowl. Dolphins are only favored by 8½. Could be one of those candyfrom-a-baby steals. DOLPHINS 28, STEELERS 14.

Cleveland (7-3-1) at Kansas City (6-4-1) — Another must game — for both teams. The Chiefs are favored by three and Jan Stenerud's toe might just provide them with the winning three points. CHIEFS 23, BROWNS 20.

Baltimore (2-9) at New York Jets (3-8) — The Colts' secondary seems to bring out the best in opposing quarterbacks this season. And that may be exactly what the doctor ordered for Joe Namath. JETS 34, COLTS 17.

Oakland (6-4-1) at Houston (110) — Ho hum, next game. RAIDERS 44, OILERS 14.

San Diego (2-8-1) at New England (4-7) — The Patriots have a chance to equal their 1971 record, 6-8, by winning two of their final three games and with the

LU swimmers open

Lawrence University swimming coach Gene Davis is highly optimistic as his team embarks on the 1973-74 season Saturday with a home meet with UW—Parkside, Racine, at 1:30 p.m. in the Alexander Gym.

Davis is optimistic of attaining two goals: an undefeated season and a swimming championship in the Midwest Conference.

Strong points on the Lawrence team, as Davis sees them, are: Tim Kelly, Oak Park, Ill.; Terry Nilles, Two Rivers; Greg Schrage, Glen Ellyn, Ill.; Tom Cutter, LaFayette, Calif.; Jeff Kashuk, St. Paul, Minn.; John Davis, Appleton; Dave Hines, Dallas, Texas, and Marshall Johnson, St. Paul, Minn.

The other two lettermen are Bill Denis, Chicago, and Bob Seavey, Hibbing, Minn.

Additional strength will come from John Cipriani, formerly of Appleton; Paul Cleermans, Rochester, Minn.; Steve Lemons, Appleton; Peter Saltzstein, Shorewood, and Jim Rand, St. Louis, Mo.

Other swimmers out are Robby Bearman, St. Louis, Mo.; Paul Jernberg, Flossmoor, Ill.; Paul Schirmer, South Bend, Ind.; and Kreg Scully, Pittsburg, Pa.

Cowens was the Bucks' chief tormentor in Boston, scoring 18 of his 26 points in the second half and grabbing 20 rebounds despite matching up with Milwaukee's 7-foot-2 Kareem Abdul-Jabbar.

Cowens, averaging 18.3 points and 15.4 rebounds for the season, plays Abdul-Jabbar much in the manner of Jerry Lucas of the New York Knicks.

Cowens often positions near the top of the key, where he can fire in 18 or 20 foot shots with accuracy. If Abdul-Jabbar strays from the basket area to pick him

Bob Plath rolled a 246 game and 622 series while John Podolski had 245-644 to share honors in the Banta Men's League at Sabre Lanes. Bill Bernadt blasted 243-628 and Dennis Laux had 237-622.

Sabre Men's Sabre: Don Mayer 589, Bob Grimmer 222-600, Ken Konetzke 577, R. Schriber 619.

Super League, 41 Bowl: Dave Grundemann 605, Bob Stevenson 576.

Sabre NFL, Sabre: Jim Sanders 234-606.

Late Baseball, Sabre: Louis R. Quello 609, Dave Versteegen 599, Bruce Sensiba 576.

Marathon Traveling, Twin City Bowl: Mike Simonis 575, Jerry Skahan 235, Earl Berndt 587, Bud Parker 575.

Legion League, 41 Bowl: Jim Learman 609, Don Jones 230-622, Harold Lipert 225-599, Randy Borree 586, Carl Senastock 582, Bill Helmering 575, Dan Mitchell 576.

Thrifty Night League, Colonial Lanes, Freedom: Jim Vanden Heuvel 229-592, Dick Schellthout 237-600, Tom Torkelson 225.

Chargers, plus the Baltimore Colts as two of their three final foes, they should do it. PATRIOTS 28, CHARGERS 17.

Detroit (4-6-1) at St. Louis (37-1) — This could be the only good chance St. Louis has to win another game this season, but the Lions, except for a game against the Dolphins, have two chances — this game and an upcoming one with the Chicago Bears. The Lions are slight favorites and should pull this one out. LIONS 21, CARDINALS 17.

Los Angeles (9-2) at Chicago (3-8) — The Rams have to keep winning if they are to keep the Atlanta Falcons from catching them in the NFC West. The schedule favors the Falcons, too, so the Rams can't relax any. This would be a nice spot for one of those upsets the Bears pull off every once in awhile. But it shouldn't happen this time. RAMS 31, BEARS 14.

New Orleans (4-7) at Green Bay (3-6-2) — The Packers are favored by seven here. It's about time that they came through with a victory, but let's look for another upset and say ... SAINTS 28, PACKERS 18.

New York Giants (2-8-1) at Washing-ton (8-3) — What ever happened to Duane Thomas? Is Washington Coach George Allen keeping him in reserve for a big game? If that's the case, he won't see much action this time. Or maybe, Allen will spring him lose and let Larry Brown's aching ribs heal. Anyway ... REDSKINS 41, GIANTS 14.

Philadelphia (4-6-1) at San Francisco (4-7) — The 49ers are favored by seven and are at home. But the Eagles are starting to gain some respectability and will be hungrier. So, in another upset ... EAGLES 24, 49ERS 21.

Buffalo (6-5) at Atlanta (8-3) — After this one, the Falcons play the Saints and the Cardinals. That's why the Rams can't relax any. O.J. may get his 100-plus yards, but Atlanta is favored by two touchdowns. FALCONS 28, BILLS 10.

up, Cowens can pass to teammates breaking for the unguarded hoop.

"Cowens hit the big shots," Bucks' Coach Larry Costello said of the game in Boston. "We tried all night to get out on him better—not just Kareem, but other guys in the area—but we never solved the problem."

Defensively, however, Cowens is one of the few NBA centers who usually plays Abdul-Jabbar with little help. As a result, Abdul-Jabbar has had some of the highest scoring nights of his career against Boston.

The Celtics' leading scorer is veteran John Havlicek with a 22.6 average.

The Bucks (20-4) have won five games in a row, including a 127-93 rout of Seattle Wednesday night. Tonight's game is sold out.

Kaukauna frosh remain unbeaten

Kaukauna is the only squad unbeaten in the 10-team Valley Frosh League after two weeks of play.

Thursday night, Ross Giordana scored 19 points to ignite the Ghosts (2-0) to a 54-45 victory over Roosevelt.

Eight teams have 1-1 records, while Maplewood is winless in two starts.

In other games, Neenah White (1-1) topped Kimberly (1-1), 37-29, Butte des Morts (1-1) nipped Madison (1-1), 45-43, Einstein (1-1) handled Maplewood, 50-30, and Wilson (1-1) bested Neenah Red (1-1), 54-37.

Dale Wirth was the other double figures scorer for Kaukauna with 10 points. Dean DeWitt fired in 14 for Roosevelt.

Neenah White held a 13-12 lead over Kimberly at halftime and led 24-20 after three quarters. For the winners, Tom Hanley collected 15 and Gregg Pritchette added 13. Tim Rusch hit 10 for the Papermakers.

Curt Pommerening scored 20 points and hauled down 19 rebounds to spark Butte des Morts. The winners led, 28-14, at halftime and 38-34 after three quarters. For Madison, Steve Kamps hit 12 and John Pettegrew added 11.

Four players scored nine points or more to ignite Einstein past Maplewood. Terry Wendt led the way for the victors with 10, while Chris Weber, Roger Hanks and Kurt Ellison contributed nine apiece. For Maplewood, Kevin Schmitting fired in 10.

John Mielke hooped 11 buckets for 22 points and Scott Schuldes added 11 to lift Wilson over Neenah's Reds. The winners made 50 per cent of their floor shots. For Neenah Red, Scott Voiss had 10 points.

Flames outlast Red Wings, 4-3

BY HOWARD SMITH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Atlanta Coach Boom Boom Geoffrion has got his second-year club headed for the playoffs but he may not survive the trip.

"If we are going to have to battle like this all year to get into the playoffs, I'll probably be dead by then," declared Geoffrion after the Flames turned a 4-0 slaughter into a 4-3 squeaker over Detroit Thursday night.

Hayes scores 47 points as Cyclones win, 90-85

MENASHA—Jeff Hayes, a 6-5 center, broke a UW-Center Fox Valley scoring record as he netted 47 points to lead the Cyclones to a 90-85 Wisconsin Collegiate Conference victory over UW-Marshfield in the Maplewood Gym here Thursday night.

Hayes, a graduate of Xavier High School, surpassed the record of Steve Krueger, who connected for 43 points several years ago.

Jeff made most of his points from long range. He fired in 19 field goals in 23 tries and converted nine of 10 free throws. The Xavier alumnus collected 23 points during the first half. After being contained well in the first eight minutes of the final session, he exploded to score 20 markers during the final 10 minutes of the game.

The Cyclones trailed, 41-37, at the intermission, but stormed back to hold a 53-44 advantage in the final half.

Bonds arrested on interference charge

SAN MATEO, Calif. (AP)—San Francisco Giants' outfielder Bobby Bonds must appear in court here Dec. 11 on a charge of interfering with police who tried to give his brother a speeding ticket.

Bonds, 27, was arrested early Thursday and brought in handcuffs to San Mateo police headquarters along with his brother Robert Vernon Bonds Jr., 32. They were later released on their own recognizances.

It was the star outfielder's second arrest this year—the first coming last Aug. 11 when the California Highway Patrol cited him for alleged drunk driving following a collision. He has pleaded innocent to that charge and will appear at a pretrial hearing in the case Dec. 10.

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Coach Al McGuire thinks the No. 7 national ranking of his Marquette University basketball team is undeserved, but he is unlikely to be proven right in the Warriors' season opener here Saturday night.

The opposition is St. John's of Collegeville, Minn., a team Marquette has demolished twice in season openers the last three years.

McGuire won't have to wait long to learn whether his assessment, or that of the poll voters, is correct.

St. John's will launch a string of three games in five nights for the Warriors, who host Portland Monday night and travel to perennially strong Tennessee Wednesday night.

Suns spoil debut of Kings' third mentor

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Kansas City-Omaha Kings unveiled their latest coach Thursday night but the results were predictable.

Phil Johnson saw his team stay close for three quarters before falling apart in the final period and absorbing a 119-99 beating at the hands of the Phoenix Suns. It was the ninth straight loss for the Kings and dropped their record for the season to 6-19.

Golden State whipped Portland 119-89 in the only other National Basketball Association game.

In the American Basketball Association, Kentucky took Memphis 102-92 and Denver defeated Indiana 127-111.

Johnson, who has been an assistant with Chicago for the past three seasons, succeeded Draff Young, who succeeded Bob Cousy when Cousy quit. Young goes back to being an assistant coach and Cousy goes back to being unemployed.

McGuire contends the Warriors' lofty ranking is a carryover from past successes, which include 20 or more victories each of the last seven seasons. He fears the Warriors' rebounding, probably their greatest asset in recent years, won't measure up to his standards.

The Warriors, in fact, are similar to McGuire's teams that preceded 6-foot-11 Jim Chones in the late 1960s. They won in those days without exceptional size, but with superb defense predicated on speed.

McGuire has said this could be his quickest team of all.

Maurice Lucas, who may be one of the nation's better baseline players, will start at center.

In a move to add rebounding strength, McGuire also will start Maurice "Bo" Ellis, his recruiting plum of last spring who, at 6-foot-9, is an inch taller than Lucas.

"He could be more physical, but his potential is unlimited," McGuire said of Ellis, a widely recruited Chicago prep product.

The other starting forward, Earl Tatum, is only 6-foot-4 but remarkably quick. Once described by McGuire as "a black Jerry West," Tatum frequently goes one-on-two in Warrior scrimmages and beats both defenders. He has been known to beat three.

Transfer Lloyd Walton, who McGuire has said could be the best guard in school history, will team with senior Marcus Washington in the backcourt.

Washington plays excellent defense, but is an erratic shooter and sometimes disrupts McGuire's pattern offense by using his speed at the wrong times.

The Warriors' bench is thin, although McGuire plans to play guards Dave Delsman and Ed Daniels and forward-center Jerry Homan nearly as much as the starters.

"If we do as much as I want us to do on defense, we won't be able to afford the luxury of only five regulars," McGuire said.

Girls volleyball test scheduled

NEENAH — St. Mary Central High School is host to one of two WISAA girls volleyball regional tournaments Saturday at the St. Margaret Mary gym.

Entries include Wayland Academy, Chippewa Falls McDonell, Eau Claire Regis, Springs, La Crosse Aquinas, Madison Edgewood, St. Mary, Lourdes, JFL Prep, Wausau Newman and Wisconsin Rapids Assumption.

The four top teams qualify for the state meet Dec. 8 at Milwaukee.

Bengals fined after using illegal tape

CINCINNATI (AP)—Labeling it "no big deal," Cincinnati Bengals' Coach Paul Brown confirmed Wednesday his club had been fined $500 by the National Football League for allowing players to use illegal white tape on their uniforms.

"We were supposed to use transparent tape. It's part of the dress code," said Brown.

The fine stemmed from a game 10 days ago with the New York Jets.

"Some of the players used white adhesive tape to hold up their socks," he said. He called the action "very trivial."

EAGLE RIVER, Wis. (AP) —The vice president of the United States Snowmobile Association has denied a report by the USSA's publicity chairman that the group has voted not to sanction Sunday races after Jan. 1.

Dan Satran of Eagle River, the publicity chairman, said Thursday the decision was made Wednesday at a meeting in Minneapolis with representatives of 10 American and Canadian snowmobile manufacturers. The USSA is the major sanctioning body for snowmobile races in the United States.

Satran said the directors also voted to order that all sanctioned races which previously had been scheduled for three days be cut to two and all two-day races

John Mahaffey leads 'Disney' by 2 strokes

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. (AP) — Baby-faced John Mahaffey is bubbling with confidence as he takes aim on a second pro golf tour triumph for the season.

"I know I can win now," the 25-year-old second-year pro said Thursday when he established a two-stroke lead after two rounds of the $150,000 Walt Disney World Open Golf Tournament.

Mahaffey, who looks much younger than his years, won his first pro tournament just a little more than a month ago in the Sahara Invitational.

And his four-under-par 68 in chill, breezy weather gave him a two-round total of 137, seven under par, and a two-stroke lead in the face for the 30,000 first prize.

The group at 139 included Lou Graham, Dwight Nevil and three rookies —Nate Starks, Larry Nelson and Dr. Gil Morgan, an optometrist who graduated from the Tournament Players Division school as an approved tournament player just a month ago.

Introducing the new Toro 524, specifically designed for snow conditions in this area

If your snowfalls average 6-14 inches (with drifts to 20 inches) then the new Toro 524 is a smart buy. You don't need anything bigger.

For $379.95* you get big-machine capability, rugged Toro construction, built-in safety features and many options.

THE TORO 524 has two stages that move 100 shovelful a minute. With its 5-h.p. engine, the Toro 524 can clean an 8-inch snowfall off a 100-foot driveway in less than 30 minutes.

The 24-inch-wide "intake auger" (see drawing) regulates the amount of snow as it's eaten up by the machine. So there's less chance of clogging up.

The powerful "hurling fan" throws snow up to 25 feet away. An adjustable chute control lets you put the snow exactly where you want it.

Then the "pivoting scraper blade" cleans up after you. Its swing action is designed to clean all the way down to the pavement. Helps provide smooth operation even over bumpy, icy surfaces.

"Safety grip system" for automatic shutoff

For safety's sake, we've placed all the controls at your fingertips. Toro has a safety grip that automatically shuts off the engine should you release the handlebars without first disengaging the the moving parts.

And in case you stumble while going backwards, the non-locking reverse gear snaps back to neutral. Another one of 7 safety features.

Your Toro Dealer has all the answers

Ask your nearest Toro Dealer (find him in the Yellow Pages) to show you the be cut to one. The decisions were in reaction to the gasoline shortage.

However, Gordon Kniskern of Medford, USSA vice president who said he chaired the meeting, said the USSA was merely encouraging sponsors to drop one day from racing programs. He said sponsors of a three day program were being urged to cut it back to two days, with Sunday preferably the day eliminated.

"We've simply asked them to reduce their schedules by one day. We will not withdraw sanction if they do otherwise," Kniskern said.

Kniskern and Satran said steps also will be taken to reduce the number of drivers qualifying for final events and to cut the number of laps in races.

All enduro races will have their traditional distances cut in half and all 24-hour races will be cancelled.

Of 13 races on the professional snowmobile circuit, two will be cancelled, although they have not been selected.

The "World Series" of snowmobile racing, scheduled for Jan. 18-20 in Eagle River, will be reduced to two days.

The USSA is asking all racers to enter and attend races close to home and refrain from long trips. The group will re-evaluate its decision after the first of the year and order further reductions if necessary.

The association claims 15,000 members.

Checklist if you're purchasing a home

If you're building a house in this period, you're in a double squeeze: pinched by tight and costly mortgage money on one side and by rapidly climbing prices of construction and materials on the other.

If you're buying a house, you're swallowing a double dose of inflation: first paying an inflated price for the house and then financing it at an inflated rate.

What's more, the grim prospect is that in 1974, mortgage money may remain tight and expensive and housing costs may continue to soar—even though our economy will at best be in a slow-down and well may be in an actual downturn, brought about in part by shortages of energy. For you, the homebuyer or builder, it could be the worst of all possible worlds: inflation in a recession.

Biggest single investment

Nevertheless, millions of you haven't any acceptable alternative to buying or building, for you must provide this type of shelter for your family. Or millions of you may be at a point in your life where you are eager to go ahead and make this biggest single investment of your lifetime. Or there simply may be no other appropriate form of shelter available in your area.

Assuming you are among these millions, how can you protect yourself against expensive errors? What are the pitfalls, where are they, how can you discover them in time? An excellent way is through a carefully thought-out checklist which you take with you when you go house-hunting or keep beside you when you are housebuilding.

Precisely this—an excellent 24-page set of guidelines in worksheet form—has just been put together by State Farm Insurance. Here are some tips I pulled out of the checklist to indicate what you should watch out for:

Exterior setting. Note whether other homes in the neighborhood are of similar quality or better. Unpaved street or lack of sidewalks, storm and sanitary sewers may mean future assessments for improvements. If builder says he'll pave streets in new development, get it in writing. Grounds. Determine the boundaries of lots you're examining. Ask about easements, which could give others rights to use your property. Check the quality of landscaping: good lawn, shrubs and trees are worth money, while lack of them will cost you money and work. Note condition of driveway and walks and how they'll affect you in winter weather.

Systematically inspect interior

House exterior. Systematically inspect all sides, top to bottom. Check whether house has storms, screens installed. Check number, location of hose connections, and whether waterproof, grounded electric outlets are handy near patio, sundeck, porch.

Inside. Layout is most important. Kitchen and living room ideally should have southern exposure to get plenty of sunlight. Note placement of windows, doors, etc., to make sure your furniture will fit. Empty rooms can appear deceptively large; measure.

Kitchen. Probably most important and expensive single room. Check placement of stove, refrigerator, sink and counters for efficiency. Ask which appliances come with house, how old they are.

Living room. Check location of nearby coat closet. Dimensions to see if furniture will fit. In dining room, check proximity to kitchen, wall outlets.

Bathrooms. Figure one bathroom for every two to three people. Check for leaks, test for adequate water pressure.

Beware of small, high windows

Bedrooms. Should be isolated from main living areas. Check for ceiling light fixtures. Small windows high on wall can be dangerous for very young or old in case of fire.

Electrical system. A 100-ampere, 220-volt electrical system is about as low as you can go today. You'll need 150-220 amperes, 220 volts if you use such power-consuming appliances as ranges, air-conditioners, electric heaters, dryers. There should be a minimum of six circuits (average eight to ten). Spare capacity valuable. Inadequate system hazardous, modernizing expensive.

Heating and/or air-conditioning system. Check whether operable, economical. Ask to see bills from previous winter/summer. Check age, type of heating system. A-1 insulation a must.

U.S. won't give oil to Saigon

WASHINGTON (AP) —South Vietnam has been encouraged by Washington to find its own sources of Middle East oil as a way of getting around the Arab oil embargo.

U.S. officials said the United States ultimately will pay for all oil purchased by the Saigon government. But they said the South Vietnamese must find their own supplies and handle the bookkeeping to make it appear the fuel is paid for by Saigon, not Washington.

Throughout the Indochina war, most oil for both U.S. and South Vietnamese military forces came from Singapore, which two weeks ago said it would no longer sell its oil to the United States.

Like more than a dozen other countries, Singapore was reacting to fears that Arab countries would stop providing it crude oil.

Since the cease-fire last January, the United States has been paying three international oil companies, Shell, Exxon and Caltex, for the oil that powers the South Vietnamese air force, army and much of the civilian economy.

South Vietnam has kept silent about the Arab-Israeli fighting, and a spokesman at the South Vietnamese embassy said Thursday his country's policy is virtually neutral.

In interviews, different officials said it is likely the Singapore refineries may not produce enough for South Vietnamese needs, so some oil may have to come directly from Arab nations, perhaps Saudi Arabia.

"The Arab countries have no interest in seeing South Vietnam collapse," one Vietnamese official said.

There has been no sign, even with the increased fighting in recent days, that the South Vietnamese are running out of oil. The country has some reserves upon which it can draw.

So far this year, the United States has underwritten the cost of more than 20 million barrels of oil for South Vietnam, Cambodia and Thailand.

Officials said the United States is doing all it can to encourage the South Vietnamese to cut back their use of oil.

Nonetheless, they said, it will be many years before Saigon can afford its own oil, and for now the United States will provide the cash for South Vietnam to buy its oil directly or indirectly from the Arab states.

Area gas flow is cut on Sunday

Most Fox Cities area gasoline service stations will be closed weekends from 9 p.m. Saturday until their normal opening time Monday morning.

A vast majority of members of the Fox Cities Retail Gasoline Dealers Association voted Thursday night to go along with President Nixon's request for a voluntary weekend closing, starting this weekend, to help conserve gasoline.

Only three of about 35 dealers represented at the meeting said they planned to stay open. The three either are on or near major highways. Several other dealers who were not present had earlier indicated they also would be staying open because of highway locations.

The association is composed of dealers from Neenah through Kaukauna and other portions of Outagamie County.

The 9 p.m. Saturday closing narrowly won out over a 6 p.m. closing. Clarence (Butch) VanderPutten, association president, had suggested the earlier closing. "Personally, I can't see bringing in a man just to work for three hours," he said. A number of dealers, however, indicated the additional three hours would help them.

Don Mueller, who concurred with the Sunday closing, suggested designated stations stay open on a rotating basis so there would be gasoline available in emergencies. "I feel I have some obligation to my customers," he said.

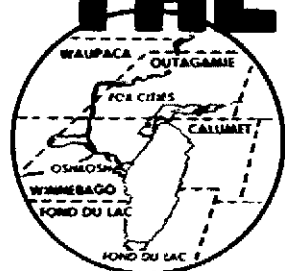

The idea was rejected, however. "There are too many oil companies involved for it to work," VanderPutten said.

VanderPutten, who operates the only 24-hour wrecker service in conjunction with a service station in the area, said he would continue to provide emergency road service on weekends, but that his policy would be that he would provide one gallon of gasoline to anyone stalled on the highway, but that he would not open his pumps for anyone.

Bill Rosz urged the dealers to give the voluntary 9 p.m. closing a try. He noted he had recently reopened on Sundays after being closed during the summer and said that Sunday business was poor.

One of the dealers who said he would remain open on Sunday was Robert Malchow who owns his station. He noted "I've got a quarter of a million dollar investment. Right now I'll be open on Sunday." But, he said, "if I was in a company owned station I would hand in the keys and go home."

Nixon bank certificate confirmed

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) —A spokesman for the Key Biscayne Bank has confirmed that President Nixon once had a $100,000 certificate of deposit in the bank owned by friend C. G. "Bebe" Rebozo, the Miami Herald said today.

The reported disclosure by Thomas Wakefield, bank vice chairman, came a day after Richard Gerstein, Dade County state attorney, revealed he had subpoenaed the bank for any records it had on trust accounts or savings certificates held by Nixon and nine others.

Wakefield was quoted as saying the certificate of deposit was taken out by Nixon after he sold his New York City apartment prior to the 1968 presidential campaign.

But Wakefield said he believed there was no connection between the Nixon account and a $100,000 campaign contribution from billionaire Howard Hughes. Rebozo has said that money was held in a bank safe-deposit box for three years before being returned after the President's 1972 re-election.

"It's my understanding there's no relationship between the CD and the $100,000 from Hughes," Wakefield was quoted as saying. "There's just no link at all."

Wakefield could not be reached immediately for comment.

A certificate of deposit earns more interest than a regular savings deposit but must be held in a bank for a specified period.

Wakefield told the Herald he could not offer a specific date but said the Nixon certificate was issued before the Hughes gift was received.

Nixon said earlier this month that before he entered the 1968 campaign, he "decided to clean the decks and put everything in real estate."

The Herald said Gerstein also asked the bank for any records it had on savings certificates or trust accounts involving Nixon's brother, Donald; Bahamas Prime Minister Linden O. Pindling; Seymour Alter, a consultant to Paradise Island Casino in the Bahamas; Wakefield, who also acts as Rebozo's personal attorney; Herbert Kalmbach, a former Nixon attorney and fund raiser; former Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans; and former White House aides Dwight Chapin, John Ehrlichman and H. R. Haldeman.

Fire ruins searched

KUMAMOTO, Japan (AP) —Firemen searched the smoldering ruins of the Taiyo department store today for more victims of a fire that killed at least 100 persons.

Eighty-six persons were injured, including 54 of those who helped fight the blaze.

The bodies of 99 holiday shoppers and store employees were recovered within hours of the fire Thursday, and another body was found today. Officials said 70 of those killed were females, 28 were males and two bodies were burned beyond recognition.

Officials in this southern Japanese city were investigating the fire's origin.

The blaze started at 1:20 p.m. near an employees' staircase on the third floor of the seven-story building, and flames and smoke spread quickly. Fire department officials said the store's sprinkler system was under repair and not working. They said many of the victims apparently were trapped by automatic closing fire doors on the fourth and sixth floors and the smoke suffocated them.

Several thousand persons were in the store. Many of them slid down ropes from the windows or scrambled 80 down scaffolding on the outside of the building where some remodeling was being done. Firemen took others down their ladders, and a helicopter lifted some off the roof.

Although only about one percent of the Japanese are Christians, Christmas since World War II has been celebrated with gift-giving, and New Year's is a traditional holiday. The Tokyo fire department warned today that the shoppers jamming the capital's department stores also were in peril because fire exits in many stores were blocked with goods.

Experts start studying 18-minute tape buzz

WASHINGTON (AP) —Experts today began studying the flawed White House Watergate tape in which an 18-minute segment of conversation has been replaced by a buzz.

The tape was taken to an unnamed laboratory in New York Thursday night to be studied by a six-man panel agreed upon by the White House and special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski.

Also shipped to New York were the electric typewriter of Miss Rose Mary

Woods and a high intensity lamp that had been on her desk on Oct. 1. That was the day she was transcribing a tape made June 20, 1972 that included a conversation between President Nixon and H. R. Haldeman, then White House chief of staff.

Miss Woods, Nixon's secretary for 23 years, told a federal court hearing that she accidentally pushed the record button on a tape machine when she leaned back to answer a telephone and thereby might have caused an erasure. But she said the telephone conversation lasted not more than four to five minutes, which would not account for the 18 minute hum that is in the tape during the Nixon-Haldeman conversation.

On Thursday White House counsel J. Fred Buzhardt testified he was able to nearly duplicate the buzzing sound by depressing both the start and record buttons on the recorder while running the typewriter and lamp. But he said that an expert called to the White House was not able to duplicate that sound.

The court hearing into the missing segment probably will resume Tuesday, possibly with Alexander M. Haig Jr., White House chief of staff, on the stand. The exact day and time of his testimony was left open for his convenience. Haig was not available today and no witnesses were heard.

Leonard Garment, a lawyer who has been representing the White House, said he did not know how long the laboratory tests on the June 20 tape will take or when the experts will begin working on nine other tapes that have been turned over to U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica.

He would not identify the laboratory other than to say that it was private. A representative of the White House, Richard Hauser, and a representative from the prosecutor's office, Carl Feldbaum, are there as observers.

Other witnesses expected to testify next week at the hearing are Lawrence Higby, former aide to Haldeman; Gen. John Bennett, of the White House staff; and Samuel Powers, a Miami attorney.

Nixon ponders gas rationing

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon may be nearing a decision on whether to impose gasoline rationing, higher gasoline taxes or both.

He scheduled a meeting for today with his cabinet-level energy group. Such a move usually means that a decision is near.

Sources said the energy group is leaning heavily toward recommending rationing to Nixon. Senior administration officials have concluded that Congress would not approve a large increase in the federal tax on gasoline to discourage driving, the sources said.

However, Nixon is known to view rationing as a last resort. On Nov. 7 he said the American people would resent peacetime rationing "very, very much" and that he personally disliked it because of the power it gave to the officials who administer it.

In a broadcast address Sunday, Nixon announced measures he said would eliminate about 10 per cent of a 17 per cent shortage of petroleum and that "additional actions will be necessary."

Herbert Stein, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, said Thursday that no decision has been made either way.

Contingency plans are being drafted for rationing, the White House has confirmed.

Stein, reporting to newsmen on a high-level assessment of the fuel shortage's economic impact, predicted it will push the nation's economy down to near-recession levels next year.

Unemployment, now standing at 4.5 per cent, will rise to close to 6 per cent, he said. That would mean that more than a million workers would lose jobs.

Stein said Americans can expect sharply higher fuel prices. He said the government should maintain price controls on petroleum because oil companies would otherwise reap windfall profits.

He said the worst impact would come in the first six months of next year and said the output of the economy could decline from January through March.

In other developments:

—Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., criticized continuing U.S. oil shipments to South Vietnam, Cambodia and Thailand during the domestic shortage. The Pentagon said the amounts of oil have been reduced but the policy of providing fuel to the three nations remains unchanged.

—The Arab oil-producing countries promised to relax the energy squeeze on Britain, France, Spain and those African nations that broke relations with Israel. The Arabs have cut off all oil for the United States.

—Chrysler Corp. said it will close seven auto assembly plants for varying periods in January. Chrysler said the move was to change over to increased small-car production.

—Robert D. Timm, chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board, said the fuel shortage probably will result in some cities losing all scheduled air service.

—The House Public Works Committee approved a bill which would set a nationwide speed limit for all vehicles of 55 miles per hour.

Heroin seized in Sheboygan

SHEBOYGAN, Wis. (AP) — Pure heroin worth $250,000 was seized this week at a Sheboygan residence, according to Police Chief Oakley Frank.

Porfirio Sosa, 44, was charged Wednesday with possession of heroin with intent to deliver, possession of a switch blade knife and with being a felony repeater. One other person was taken into custody but not charged, Frank said.

Dist. Atty. Lance Jones called it the single largest heroin seizure in the state.

Circuit Court Judge Allen Deehr set bail at $100,000.

Family stays together

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) —The skeleton of an elderly woman was found in a locked-up house today, and police said it appeared as if her body had been placed in the living room by a brother and sister who wanted her to "remain part of the family."

Their bodies were found upstairs in the bed where they died of natural causes, officials said.

Police said the skeleton of Cecilia Kenney, 84, was discovered on a downstairs couch facing a television set. They said she may have been dead as long as a year.

Upstairs, police found the bodies of her 76-year-old sister, Grace, lying on a bed next to the brother, Roland, 72. They were thought to have died within the last month, according to officials.

Det. Sgt. Bruce Russell said in his report, "It appears that Cecilia died of natural causes and the other two dressed her and laid her on the couch so that she could still remain part of the family."

"Grace and Roland continued living a normal life. Roland died around a month ago, and was asleep in his bed at the time. Grace left him there, and tried to continue her life, but found she could not."

"She lay in the same bed as Roland and died a few days or weeks later."

Medical examiner Thomas Mathews said there was no evidence of foul play.

The family was reclusive and shunned contacts with neighbors, authorities said.

The discovery was made after neighbors called the post office to report mail had been piling up in front of the house for three weeks. Post office officials notified police, who entered the house through a window and discovered the three bodies, along with the bodies of two pets.

Disputes on New London agenda

NEW LONDON—Two disputed issues that had been discussed at length Nov. 20 will again be on the agenda when the City Council meets at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday.

A recommendation from the board of health, safety and welfare that the city sign a three-year contract giving subsidy to Cline Hanson Inc., for emergency ambulance service again will come before the council.

The recommendation was presented two weeks ago, culminating about five months of discussion, but was sent back to committee after a competing ambulance company said they were never contacted about the proposal, and opposed subsidy to a private company.

The board this week voted to recommend approval of the three-year pact with Cline Hanson, with a first year subsidy of $1.19 per capita, for a total of $6,978. The price would be reviewed each year.

A clause will be included in the contract where the company will agree to meet all state and federal guidelines, provide 24-hour emergency ambulance service, and take patients to the nearest hospital, unless special treatment is required or the patient requests to be taken to another health care facility.

The company is prepared to purchase a new ambulance to cost about $15,000, or purchase a more expensive modular type ambulance.

After the new equipment is purchased, according to David Rusch of Cline Hanson, the company will keep their present ambulance for back-up work. It will also have a station wagon that can be used for patient transfers and other calls, making three emergency vehicles available.

Sgt. Stanley Arnold of the Outagamie County Traffic Patrol had earlier called the proposal "a terrific bargain," and the Waupaca County safety coordinator also praised the subsidy plan.

Besides New London, the Town of Liberty, Horton, Maple Creek, Caledonia, Mukwa, Lebanon, Bear Creek and the Village of Bear Creek are also considering the proposal. The municipal representatives have expressed favorable feelings about the proposal, and are expected to sign the contracts soon.

In other business Tuesday, the council will act on the applications for liquor licenses from two establishments that presently hold beer licenses. Since the law requires a three-fourths vote of the entire body, the licenses will only be acted on if the entire council is present.

Gerald's and The Sommer Place have applied for licenses under a state law passed last summer that allows local governments to grant the licenses to beer bar operators. City Atty. James Lindgren has given the council a legal opinion that both businesses meet the law's requirements.

In other business, the council is expected to discuss a proposed $1 million shopping mall that was discussed at a recent planning commission meeting. An alderman said this week he would ask the council to write James Refrigeration Co., of Minneapolis, Minn., a letter welcoming them to the community if they definitely decide to develop the shopping area. They propose the enclosed 10-store facility on a 12-acre plot in the town of Horton, and have said they want to annex to the city and would pay all costs for sewer and water installation if they can purchase the land.

Mayor Herman Gagnow is also expected to set a time and date for a meeting of the city's flood control committee, which hasn't met since it was appointed two months ago.

Shredded waste might become source of energy

BY DON CASTONIA
Post-Crescent staff writer

Area industrial leaders will be invited to meet with county officials Dec. 13 to explore the potential of energy recovery from the shredded waste that will come out of the county's solid waste shredder next summer.

One firm, Thilmany Pulp & Paper Co., already is converting one of its boilers to permit the use of refuse for fuel. And the Menasha Electric Utility has indicated interest in the potential of refuse as a fuel to partly replace coal at its steam generating plant.

The energy recovery aspect of the shredder waste came as an outgrowth of a zoning committee meeting Thursday on the feasibility of using a sand pit as a landfill site for the waste.

County Executive Alvin Woehler flatly said he would block any move to purchase land for a landfill and pushed the potential of leasing the pit to give the county short-term landfill capability.

The county had been approached by John Calnin, who operates the pit, on the leasing possibility.

Woehler contended that with the unsettled situation involving the potential state takeover of solid waste disposal and the energy recovery potential, the county may not have any landfill need for more than a few years.

John Reinhardt, head of the solid waste section of the state Department of Natural Resources, who met with the committee and viewed the pit at Broadway and French Road, agreed that it could be used, but that it would be expensive and would need extensive engineering work.

Approval to go ahead with the engineering work will be sought from the county board Dec. 11. Reinhardt compared the engineering to that of "any other public works project."

One of the requirements for use of the pit would be to line it with clay to prevent any leachate from going through into the water table. Reinhardt estimated, based on Madison's experience, that lining could cost up to $5,000 an acre.

The pit is about 40 acres, but the proposal would be to use about 10 acres initially. The clay would come from adjacent land which Calnin wants to strip to get at the sand under the clay.

Woehler said the cost factor should be worked out with Calnin since he also would benefit in the process.

Supv. Joseph Kasperek asked Reinhardt what the comparable cost would be to prepare open land for landfilling as compared to a pit.

Reinhardt said the cost would depend on the individual site, but that it would undoubtedly be less for an open field.

The zoning committee had been considering an 80-acre site near Plamann Park which had been available for $1,000 an acre until Woehler came out against purchasing any land.

The energy recovery potential also intrigued the committee. Supv. Joseph DeBruin, committee chairman, was particularly interested in recent publicity given to a Coors Brewery experiment in converting shredded waste into gas which is then used for fuel. Coors officials have estimated that after recycling they can use the entire daily refuse production of Denver. The advantage of turning the refuse into gas is that direct burning of the refuse would produce air pollution while the gas is pollution-free.

'74 budget $88,321 at Sherwood

SHERWOOD—A 1974 village budget of $88,321, $16,698 more than this year, was approved at a public hearing Thursday night.

One nonofficeholding taxpayer attended the hearing conducted by the village board.

The net tax rate will be $27.02 per $1,000 assessed valuation for real estate and personal property within the Hilbert school district and $24.21 in the Kaukauna school district. Rates for 1973 were $29.36 and $29.99, respectively.

The levy for 1974 will be $54,139, compared with $58,080 for 1973, and will be raised by the property tax. Total assessed valuation of the village is $1,971,983.

The levy includes $31,878 for the Kaukauna school district, $1,562 for the Hilbert district, $10,704 for village purposes, $7,575 for county tax, $1,946 for the vocational school tax, a state tax of $413 and $57 for handicapped children.

Rates raised at Calumet Memorial

CHILTON—Calumet Memorial Hospital will raise pediatric and all adult bed rates $1 per day effective Dec. 1, Joseph Schumacher, hospital administrator, has announced.

He noted that this is the first rate increase in 23 months, or since January 1972, and will reflect a 2.2 to 2.7 per cent increase.

Schumacher also announced to the board of directors at their recent meeting that charges will be increased for some specific services and supplies of the emergency room, operating room, laboratory, delivery room, central sterile supply, nursery and blood bank deposits.

He said the reasons for the increased charges included increased uncontrollable and controllable expenses to include cost of supplies, materials, services, utilities. The increased employer's contribution to Social Security, cost of living increases, improved employee benefits, increased payroll, and supply costs related to services including the tissue laboratory, physical therapy, pathology and an orthopedics consultant service were also cited.

Schumacher also notified the board that the Prospective Rate Review Committee of Blue Cross of Wisconsin has also approved the proposed 1974 hospital fiscal budget as well as the application to increase rates.

1st low-cost housing ready at Waupaca

WAUPACA—Residents will be moving into Ye Old Firehouse Apartments on North Main Street in mid-December.

The $302,000 tri-level apartment building, the city's first low cost housing facility, built by Anderson Brothers, has 30 one bedroom apartments, with living room, kitchen, bath and dining area. The building is electrically heated, carpeted and air conditioned.

Residents, to be eligible must meet the $3,800 annual income limit and have maximum asset limits of $5,000. James Anderson said Friday, there are still units available and applicants should contact him.

An open house is planned for Dec. 9.

Goodfellows start campaign

CLINTONVILLE—The Goodfellows Association has begun its campaign to bring Christmas baskets to area needy families.

Last year, baskets were distributed to 116 families.

Frank Sinkewicz, executive secretary-treasurer, said this year's campaign so far has received a $66 contribution from Clintonville Lanes as a result of its setting aside five cents from each line of bowling this summer for the Goodfellows organization.

Sinkewicz said, "Whether or not your organization is in a position to make a contribution, groups may submit the names of those families who may be in need during the Christmas season."

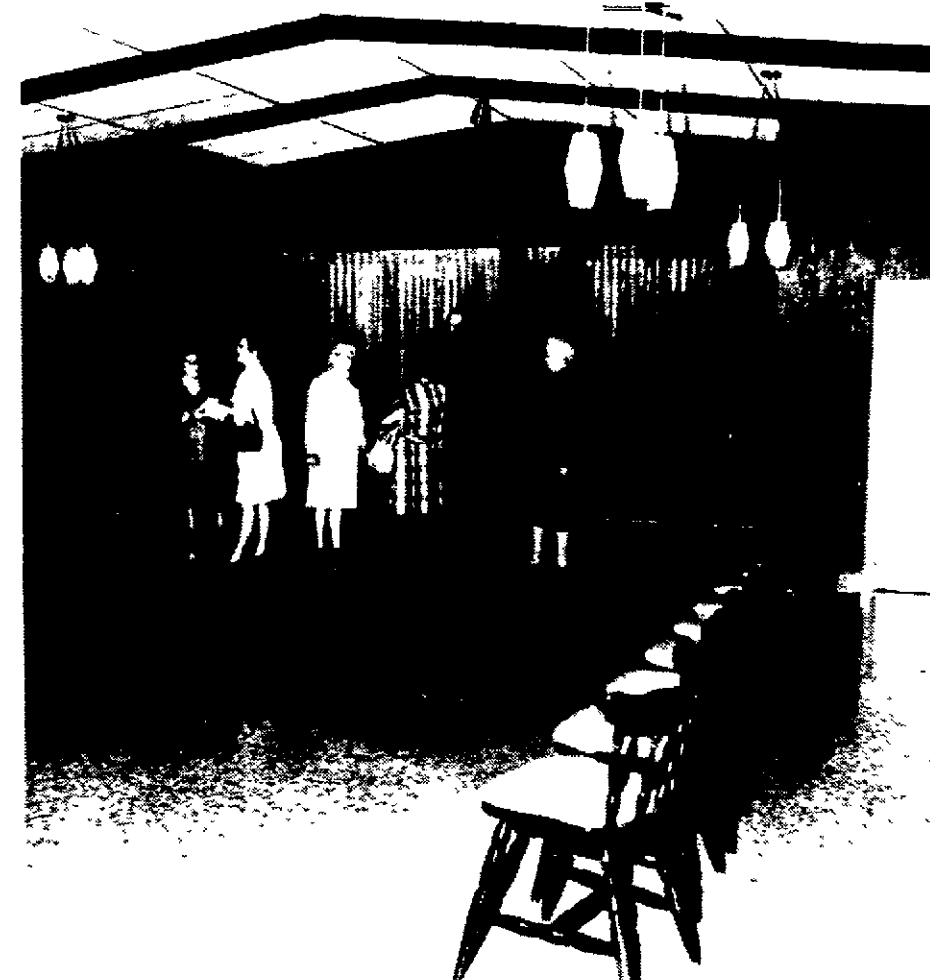

The Clintonville Goodfellows Association is registered with the state and contributions are tax deductible, Sinkewicz said.

Nursing home

Weyauwega's new Health Care Center, Inc., a 103-bed skilled nursing home, will receive its first 30 to 40 residents next week. Meals will be served five times daily from the large, modern kitchen, above. Residents will occupy double rooms furnished with up-to-date equipment, directly below, and use the multipurpose room, bottom, as a gathering place and chapel. (Paschke photos)

Health care patients get new home

WEYAUWEGA—Between 30 and 40 health care patients will have a new home during the first week in December.

Then Health Care Center, Inc., a skilled nursing home will be officially open. The center will provide 24 hour professional service.

The home, along Waupaca County Trunk F near the city's eastern limits, is qualified under Title 19.

The 103-patient capacity home has rooms equipped for two occupants, however, four rooms can be converted to private suites. One room is reserved for isolation.

Rooms are arranged in wings with a small lounge for residents at the end of each corridor. Upper walls are vinyl covered and tile covers the lower portion. Safety rails line the corridors. Fireproof styrofoam beams, finished to simulate wood, have been used in the dining area as a safety measure. Air-conditioning will not be installed because of the danger of patients developing pneumonia.

The center includes a multi-purpose room that can double as a chapel, physical therapy room, beauty parlor and barber shop, doctors' examining room, laundry facilities, dining areas, employees lounge, visitors lounge and a kitchen equipped with the latest innovations.

All wings converge on the nurses' station, making it possible for the duty nurse to see all exits. As an added precaution, a panel lights up and indicates when and where an outside door is opened.

A five meals a day system will be initiated. The schedule will be 7-30 a.m. snack type breakfast served in the room; 10:30 a.m. larger breakfast; 1:30 p.m. snack lunch; 4:30 p.m. dinner and 7-30 p.m. evening snack.

The home, owned by a family corporation, will be administered by David Nolan. Mrs. Bonnie Hunter will be in charge of the medical records; Mrs. Edgar Perkins will act as social director; Karl Sanger will be the consulting pharmacist.

The home will offer the services of physicians, physical therapist, dentist and optometrist.

BRILLION—A hearing on the proposed municipal budget for 1974 has been scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the city hall.

Final figures on the tax rate are not yet available because the state tax credit has not been released and the board of review has not completed its work because of problems with the total reassessment done this year.

When the board does adjourn, the new assessed value in the community is anticipated to be very close to $30,000,000, which is approximately 40 per cent over last year's $21,649,008.

Citizen concern over the recent reassessment and resulting higher property evaluations prompted Mayor Clarence Wolf to release preliminary figures.

It is anticipated that a tax rate of $26.43 per $1,000 will be levied to raise $792,895 required for all purposes after an expected adjustment of $2.50 per $1,000 in state tax credit. In 1973, a tax rate of $32.49 was required to raise $757,168 for all purposes less a $2.95 state tax credit.

In meaningful terms to a property owner, if the new assessed value placed on a property this year showed an increase of 35 per cent, the actual dollars to be paid in taxes will remain.

Breakdown of actual dollars required for 1974 shows state $5,985; county $109,254; school $471,357; vocational school $28,075; and city $178,224. Dollars raised comparatively for 1973 were: state $5,736; county $113,783; school $434,965; vocational school $26,889 and city $185,795.

Negotiations between the city and the Laird Co., which did the complete reappraisal are still continuing after the board of review expresses dissatisfaction and raised legal questions on the work done.

Jack Gribble, vice-president of the firm, submitted a proposal Monday to a special meeting of the council under which the work would be completely done over in 1974. Although Gribble called the various items of the $4,925 proposal "raw costs" and some of the services are additional to those already performed, aldermen contended that some of them would not be necessary if the appraisal had been "correctly done" this year.

The biggest problem encountered was the overassessment of residential properties determined by the state as 111 per cent of equalized value as compared with commercial at 85 per cent and some sizeable omissions from the roles.

The Council also objected to the method of payment under the new Laird proposal and was assured by Gribble that the matter was also negotiable.

The board of review is expected to adjourn after a meeting called for 7:30 p.m. Monday ending a term that has seen many stormy and tedious sessions. A decision must also be made on whether or not to accept the Laird proposal.

Earl Much rites scheduled in Marion

MARION—Funeral services for Earl L. Much, 61, 514 N. Main St., owner and operator of the Much Candy Co. here for 37 years, will be at 2 p.m. Saturday at St. John Lutheran Church.

Much died Thursday morning.

He was born in the Town of Union in Waupaca County.

Survivors include his widow, three daughters, two sons, six grandchildren, his mother and a brother.

Visitation will be to 9 p.m. today and from 9 a.m. to noon Saturday at the Schroeder Funeral Home and afterward at the church. Burial will be in Greenleaf Cemetery here.

Green Lake judge assigned to Juno case

CHILTON—Green Lake County Judge David C. Willis has been assigned to hear criminal court proceedings involving retired Calumet County Police Capt. Victor Juno.

The assignment was made by the state court administrator's office after local county and circuit court judges disqualified themselves. No date was set for Juno's next court appearance.

Juno, 56, of Brillion, is free on $2,000 bond. The State Department of Justice, on Nov. 14, charged him with one count of misconduct in public office. He has not yet entered a plea to the charge with carries a maximum penalty of $500 or a year in prison or both.

State agents allege that he kept $500 of county police parking fine money for his own use. Juno retired about a week before the charge was filed.

Symphony trip OK'd by PTO for Manawa pupils

MANAWA—A trip to the children's concert of the Fox Valley Symphony was approved recently by the Parent Teacher Organization. Pupils in grades one through four and special education at the Manawa Elementary School will travel by bus to the free concert at 3 p.m. Dec. 9 in the Lawrence University Memorial Chapel, Appleton.

Members of the PTO and the Fox Valley Symphony League will be chaperones. Buses will leave the school at 1:30 p.m. and return at about 5:15 p.m. Permission slips will be sent home with pupils Friday. They are due back at the school by Dec. 6. A survey had been conducted by Mrs. Robert Riske, PTO activities chairman, prior to the action to consider this project for the young people.

Mrs. Riske and Mrs. Carol Diehl, area chairman of the Fox Valley Symphony League, have additional information about the trip.

Good, bad news for Clintonville

CLINTONVILLE—Recent mild, wet weather has brought the city street department some good events and some bad events.

According to Elmer Anderson, street commissioner, the good part is not having to use the department gas supply to run trucks plowing snow and the bad part is that road work has become a muddy operation.

This week on Sunset Boulevard, which runs west of N. 12th Street, the city's front end loader had to be removed because it sank too far in the mud.

Anderson said that the more they worked, the worse it got. A bulldozer leveled the boulevard and the front end loader took the dirt away from the side of the roadway and carried it to the center. Anderson explained that the boulevard has to be higher in the center than at the outside to allow proper drainage, which is the reason for carrying the fill to the center.

Anderson said that this is causing a mess as it doesn't dry out this time of the year like it does in the summer. He was expecting to have the center section of the street filled by the end of this week; but until the ground freezes, the muddy condition will persist.

Anderson expects more problems when it is time to start snowplowing as the snowplows will have less maneuvering room on Sunset Boulevard

GOP 'vulnerable' in 1974 elections

After Outagamie County Democrats approved a longer term for their chairman Wednesday, they heard the man certain to be elected to the post next month urge his workers to muster strength for several "crucial" 1974 campaigns, including one against the incumbent Republican district attorney who is "at this moment, politically dead."

Lawrence Longley, county party chairman since 1969, said Outagamie County Dist. Atty. John J. Ensley is "very vulnerable" to election defeat in November, 1974, when he will come up for re-election to a second term.

Attacks on his performance in office have left him an easy target for a Democratic challenger in 1974, said the current chairman who was nominated for another term Wednesday. And, despite his vulnerability, Longley said he expected the GOP to support Ensley in a run for another term.

Ensley won his first term as district attorney in 1972, defeating Appleton attorney Paul Horvath, 26,369 to 15,901.

Longley, whose next term as chairman will last two years after 14 members of the county party organization approved a new constitution Wednesday, said Democrats would also do well to run a strong candidate for county clerk in 1974. The present incumbent, Republican Arthur Hoolihan, is also "vulnerable," he said.

Longley said the crucial test for the party in 1974, however, will be in the race for Congress in the Eighth District, where incumbent Rep. Harold Froehlich, R-Appleton, will be seeking a second consecutive term. He narrowly defeated the Rev. Robert Cornell in 1972, but Longley said a third consecutive run for the congressional seat next year could be Cornell's best yet against a "vulnerable" Froehlich.

Cornell also lost against John Rep. John Byrnes, R-Green Bay, in 1968.

Longley said the congressional race in 1974, coming at a time when Republicans are suffering from the effects of Watergate, will be "one of our most crucial efforts ever."

The party unit's new constitution, passed without dissension and little discussion, provides for these changes:

—Lengthening the term of chairman from one to two years. Drafters of the change, including Longley, believe that will bring needed continuity of leadership and also avoid divisive inter-party battles during major election years. Chairmen will be elected in off years.

at consecutive meetings, rather than at the same meeting.

Longley and several other party officers were nominated Wednesday. All are unopposed and will be elected at the December meeting.

A provision that at least 2 persons must be present to form a quorum for party meetings sparked the longest debate. Some said this might be increased to prevent such a small number from calling the shots for an organization with 300 dues-paying members.

Longley will investigate the possibility of mailing ballots for crucial party votes, but said he didn't think it would be legal under state party rules. The party chairman noted that the "broader problem" raised by the debate, however, was the current lack of active party membership in the

Buffalo meat makes annual visit to area

Is buffalo at home on your range? If not, it could be. A north side Appleton supermarket is having its once-a-year sale of buffalo meat and it's going fast.

Richard Sweetalla, journeyman meatcutter at the Red Owl store on W. Wisconsin Avenue, said the store recently received three head of buffalo and when that supply runs out, that's the end of buffalo meat until next year.

Marie Sandvik of the chain's Minneapolis office said Red Owl and one other chain are about the only grocery stores that offer buffalo meat.

She said the meat supply comes from South Dakota each year about this time, when the government thins its buffalo herds. Although she said she has never tried it, she has heard it "tastes pretty good."

Sweetalla has tried it and says he likes it, but wouldn't say it's better than beef. "It's something different. Almost everyone who has tried it has liked it. It tastes sweeter than beef" but otherwise is fairly similar, he said.

He said most people try it just to say they've tried it and because it is available for only a short time each year. The store has carried the meat at this time for several years and people expect it.

Prices are slightly higher than beef prices. Prices for buffalo cuts in the meat counter Thursday were $1.49 a pound for chuck roast, $1.99 a pound for chuck steak, $1.49 a pound for rump roast and $1.59 a pound for stew balls.

Diesel shortages putting pinch on truck terminals

Major trucking lines with terminals in the Fox Cities area are already starting to feel the pinch of diesel fuel shortages and anticipate the situation could become critical in January and February.

Local haul operators, who rely mainly on gasoline-powered trucks, report they have not yet felt any effects of a fuel shortage.

A spokesman for CW Transport Co., one of the largest in the state, said they are still operating normally at the present time, but anticipate a severe diesel fuel shortage in the very near future. "We have been warned to conserve fuel as much as possible," he said. A lack of fuel, he added, could force the shutdown of some of their terminals.

About 35 trucks depart from CW's Fox Cities terminal nightly.

At Gateway Transportation, the giant trucking firm reported they have been cutback 12 per cent on diesel fuel "and that means we carry that much less freight." He said he expected January and February to be especially rough.

The Gateway spokesman said most of their shorthaul trucks were gasoline powered, "but they aren't big enough for the long-haul routes."

One outfit that doesn't expect a problem is Ryder Truck Rental. A spokesman at the district office in Neenah said all of the firm's over-the-road trucks are diesel, but that Ryder maintains 450 centers across the country and they have adequate diesel fuel supplies at all points. He also noted that the trucking line recently purchased its own refinery.

Another rental outfit, Hertz, also reported normal operations "up to now." However, they do not have any diesel trucks.

A spokesman for Fore-Way Express, a major express delivery line in the state, declined to speculate on the future situation, but noted that the diesel fuel situation "has been tough for six months." The line, he said, uses about 30,000 gallons of diesel fuel a month.

Two local transfer lines reported no problems up to this point.

Remmick Trucking, which operates only gasoline powered trucks, reported they have not been notified of any fuel cutback yet, but they do anticipate an allocation reduction.

Dorn's Delivery & Transfer said they have been assured by their supplier that they will have adequate supplies of both gasoline and diesel fuel for this winter.

Moving van lines have not reported any fuel problems locally, but one, Appleton Moving & Storage, said some of its drivers reported problems getting diesel fuel on hauls to the east coast and Florida.

All of the other moving lines locally operate only gasoline powered trucks and have reported no problems as yet.

UF drive over halfway to goal

NEW LONDON — Over $11,000 has already been donated to this year's New London United Fund drive, which has set a goal of $17,500.

The business and professional drives and the payroll deduction drives have not been completed, but the house-to-house and advanced gifts campaigns are done.

Mrs. William Snyder, president of the United Fund, will call a meeting when the final accounting of the drive is ready.

CHILTON — Fire broke out early today at the Claus Iron and Metal Shop, 442 Clay St., causing damage to the part of the warehouse facilities of the sheet metal firm. The city fire department was summoned at 6:30 a.m. and extinguished the fire.

According to a company spokesman an electrical fire caused damage to the ceiling and a portion of the roof in the shop warehouse area. No estimate of the damage loss was given.

Brillion board okays original assessments for utility installations

BRILLION — After evaluation by the board of public works, special assessments for recent utility installations will be levied as initially programmed. The council voted this week to have the necessary resolution prepared.

Several persons were heard at a recent hearing in regard to the assessments which included curb and gutter on Madison, Glenview and Apollo Court and water and sewer mains and laterals on Mary, Glenview, National, Horn, Kennedy and Ryan streets.

Among the requests denied was one from the Brillion Board of Education to postpone assessments on school property for 10 years as no building is contemplated.

Assessments may be paid in three equal yearly installments but will be subject to an 8 per cent interest rate on the unpaid balance as of Jan. 1, 1974.

The inability of the city to publish the total amount of taxes to be levied for 1974 by the statutory deadline of Nov. 20 was discussed. After conferring with representatives of the Department of Taxation it was determined there is no problem because adequate data is available to support the existence of problems encountered because of a recent reassessment. The levy should be available this week.

Street lighting for Kennedy and Mary streets was approved as recommended by the Wisconsin Public Service Corporation. The two 11,000 lumens units and four 7,000 lumens units will be installed within the next few weeks and will increase the monthly municipal billings by $26.82.

Myra Klug, presently employed in the office of clerk-treasurer was appointed acting clerk-treasurer until a permanent appointment can be made to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Clerk Wesley Howell. Howell will continue to work as city assessor on an hourly basis.

Acting on a plan commission recommendation, dating back to 1964, a hearing was set for 8 p.m. Dec. 20 relative to rezoning the Alfred Schroeder property to closed industrial. A verbal commitment for the zoning was made at the time the 2.4 acre parcel was annexed to the city.

In other action:

—The purchase of a new squad car from Horn Ford for their low bid of $1,790 plus trade-in was approved.

—Ald. Miller reported options can be secured on two land parcels located in the redevelopment area.

—Larry Brown who will replace Glen Campbell as public works director as of Dec. 10 was introduced. Campbell will continue until Jan. 1 after which he will serve in an advisory capacity.

—Permission was given to Barney Mullins to break curb at 111 S. Elm St. The next regular meeting of the council was rescheduled for 7:30 p.m. Dec. 20 because of the Christmas holiday.

Police & fire

CHILTON — Two persons were treated and released from St. Elizabeth Hospital, Appleton, for minor injuries after a 1:45 a.m. accident today on State 55 and U.S. 114 one-half mile south of Sherwood. Injured were Kelley B. Cooper, 22, Detroit, Mich., and John J. Steele, 22, Milwaukee. Both were passengers in a car driven by Ricky A. Bobo, 20, Milwaukee. According to the Calumet County traffic report, the Bobo auto was northbound on 55, went through a stop sign and landed in a cemetery. The injured were taken to St. Elizabeth by ambulance.

CLINTONVILLE — The volunteer rescue squad was called about 6:20 p.m. Sunday to the Ox Bowl Tavern, east of Clintonville on County Trunk CC, to assist Hilary Boncher, who was ill and was transported to the Clintonville Community Hospital.

WAUPACA — The sheriff's department is investigating the weekend theft of a large sign, a color television set and five dozen pizzas from the King's Roost. Total value of the items is estimated at $670.

The theft is believed to have occurred sometime between 3 and 11:45 a.m. Saturday. Investigator James Biddison reported that apparently the thief either had a key or hid himself in the tavern during open hours.

However, Anderson said he was optimistic about how the energy shortage will affect the city's snowplowing this winter. He said the city uses about 16,000 gallons of fuel during the winter months, and if the city would be caught short, snowplowing, rather than sanding operations will be curtailed.

Anderson said that possibly the city wouldn't plow after a light snowfall if the gas supply got tight.

Clintonville AFL-CIO plans Christmas party for members' children

CLINTONVILLE — Local 815 of the Allied Industrial Workers (AIW), AFL-CIO, will sponsor its annual Christmas party for the children of its members at 1 p.m. Dec. 15 at the junior high school auditorium.

There will be treats, games, entertainment and movies for the children and Santa will make an appearance.

Courts

WAUPACA — Jeffery Gross, 26, Menomonee Falls, appeared for his preliminary hearing in County Court Branch 1, Wednesday, charged with two felony counts of endangering safety of another by conduct regardless of life. Judge A. Don Zwickey bound him over to Branch 2 for trial and continued bond of $500 cash and $2,000 property. No trial date was set.

Gross also faces five misdemeanor counts, including disorderly conduct, attempted battery, resisting an officer, fleeing an officer and possession of marijuana.

Preliminary hearings were also held for his companions, Michael Gross, 18, Menomonee Falls and Bruce W. Miller, Milwaukee.

Judge Zwickey dismissed the two felony counts of endangering safety by conduct regardless of life, with which both men were charged on Nov. 20. Both will face charges of disorderly conduct, attempted battery, resisting an officer and fleeing an officer. Their bail bond was reduced to $200.

A fourth person, a 17-year-old juvenile from Germantown, was granted immunity Wednesday when he testified and answered questions before his attorney in judge's chambers. His appearance in juvenile court has not been scheduled.

The four were charged on Nov. 20, following a Nov. 19 incident at a Marion bar, where, allegedly, they caused a disturbance. They also allegedly endangered the life of Joseph Gretzinger, owner of Slim's Bar; and fled Asst. Police Chief Robert Janke. Janke testified in court that the four persons, aimed their vehicle at him and almost hit him when he tried to apprehend them.

Three bullet holes were found in the defendant's car, allegedly, fired by Janke.

WAUPACA — Lennard R. Barth, 30, route 2, Marion, was cited Wednesday, for driving 90 m.p.h. at night; operating without a valid driver's license and attempting to elude a police officer.

Judge A. Don Zwickey, acting judge in County Court Branch 2, continued the case to 11:30 a.m., Dec. 5, at Clintonville. Bond was set at $288 cash, or $577 property bond with two state signers.

Lance B. Burdick, 25, of 3821 W. Wisconsin, Appleton, appeared in County Court Branch 2, Wednesday, on a disorderly conduct with a motor vehicle charge and his case was continued until 9:30 a.m., Dec. 3.

Burdick was arrested after he fished his car out of a Waupaca Service Station.

Judge A. Don Zwickey ordered a $217 appearance bond, requiring the signature of two property owners.

WAUPACA — Charles M. Gough, 76, Neil Hotel, was fined $25 and costs Thursday after he pleaded guilty in Waupaca County Court Branch 2 to a charge of disorderly conduct.

According to the complaint, city police were called Wednesday to the office of a local dentist, where Gough was lying on the waiting room floor. Gough apparently had been drinking and was using loud, abusive language. When an officer tried to reason with him, Gough attempted to hit him and was placed under arrest.

Top 'salesmen' recognized by Clintonville Cub pack

CLINTONVILLE — A total of $3,390 worth of merchandise from the Tom Watt kits was sold by the boys in Cub Scout Pack 28, it was announced at Tuesday night's meeting held at the Parish Hall of the Christus Lutheran Church. The merchandise will be distributed by the boys within the next week.

Top salesmen prizes were awarded in three age groups for first, second and third places. Winners in the 8-year-old group were David Carlson, Jeff Kubitz and Eric Nickaah; 9-year-old group, Mark Klemp, David Harbath, and Jay Roloff; and Webelos winners, Mike Pringnitz, Andy Krueger and Mike Seaman.

The profit received by the Pack will be used for outings and projects throughout the year.

Twenty-four awards were presented for various projects and advancements completed by the boys. Bear badges were awarded to Terry Mehlberg, Brian Lindow, Tim Galinas, John Allen and Danny Johnson; gold arrows, Terry Mehlberg, Brian Lindow, Tim Galinas, John Allen and Danny Johnson; and silver arrows, Terry Mehlberg (three), Brian Lindow (eight), Tim Galinas (one), and John Allen (three).

Joining Cub Scouts and receiving their Bobcat badges were Joseph Anderson and Greg Steenbock. One-year service pins were given to Bob Syverson, Dhad Cassiani and Dan Johnson; and two-year service pins to John Allen and Chad Cassiani. Jeff Kubitz received a recruiter's badge. Advancing into Webelos was John Allen.

Paul Cross graduated from Cub Scout Pack 28 and was accepted into the Boy Scout troop by Scoutmaster Lowell Easley.

Dennis Kussmann, chairman of the Pack 28 committee, spoke on behalf of the pack recognizing Mr. and Mrs. Howard Cross for the work they have done for the unit in the past three years. Cross was cubmaster for three years and Mrs. Cross was den coach.

The Pack's Christmas party will be Dec. 18, when the boys will trim Christmas trees with decorations they have made at their den meetings. Santa will visit the party.

WAUPACA — Wingspread, the first condominium development in the Chain O' Lakes area, will be open for public inspection from 1 to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. Visitors will tour a model unit in the Eagle's Nest, an eight-unit bilevel building facing McCrossen Lake. It and a second building, the Ravenswood, facing Round Lake, will be ready for occupancy about Jan. 1.

The furnished unit is being shown by the Peterson Agency, Inc., Waupaca.

Wingspread, located off County Trunk Q east of Indian Crossing, was designed by Living Design, Ltd., Manitowoc architects and engineers. Interior decorating was done by Falk Interiors, Whiting.

The condominiums were built by E. B. Sommers, Inc., Stevens Point.

Further development of the old Fern Terrace site, which will include a cocktail lounge and supper club, is expected to begin in late spring or early summer.

High school class enlists 60 children

CLINTONVILLE — Sixty 3- and 4-year-old children have joined the student body at the senior high school this week.

The younger set are part of the play school program of the child development classes.

Students in the child development class have converted the home economics kitchen laboratory into a nursery room. Each student was responsible for making an educational toy suited for a 3- or 4-year-old child.

During the 30-minute class period, the children are entertained with stories, games, songs and the construction of a craft project. These activities are designed to give the students a chance to become better acquainted with this age group.

Today and Friday, a special mothers' forum is scheduled. Mrs. Beth Casady, a reading specialist, will speak about preparing preschoolers for reading. On Friday, Mrs. Charles Wruck, home economics instructor, will show a video tape of the children in play school and explain the operation of the program.

Separate the issues

When Gov. Lucey invited the Democratic and Republican leaders of the legislature to discuss with him issues of election campaign finance reform that may be put before state legislators when they return in January, a leading Republican pragmatically suggested that the questions of tax-financed campaign funds and expenditure controls be considered separately.

The counsel came from Sen. Raymond Johnson, who speaks as the chosen leader of the state Senate Republican majority which must be persuaded to consent to any legislative propositions the governor and his Democratic majority in the Assembly may desire to advance.

There are several reasons why the Johnson counsel is useful. The idea of appropriating tax money to subsidize the ambitions of men and women to run for sheriff, or the legislature, or governor, or whatever, is new and almost surely is not yet supported by many voters, or altogether understood by them.

The need for expenditure control and reform of the laws governing giving and solicitation of money to political candidates is an ancient one. Virtually everyone who pretends to any awareness of political affairs, or interest in the quality of government in this country, must have reservations not only about the shameful escalation of campaign costs and the risk of pricing the independent candidate out of competition, but of the peril implicit that the providers of such money wield an unwholesome influence upon election winners after the votes are counted and they are installed in public offices.

The pressing need is for a system of control that will promote reasonable equality of competition. Whether that will one day require the use of money from the public treasury, derived from taxes on the general population without regard to its partisan inclinations, is now uncertain. It will remain uncertain until there is a genuine effort to reform the system of private financing. In any event, there is some doubt about public acceptance of the idea, and to that degree the association of the two issues may well threaten any progressive movement toward cleaner politics and assurance of reasonable integrity of those men and women who manage to win elections.

To suggest doubt about the present acceptability of government-financed politicians' campaign chests is not to challenge its merit. It is to reflect what is an apparent reservation in the mind of Gov. Lucey, a practiced pragmatist, about what is attainable in this state during the present term of the legislature. The time is late. Opportunity remaining before the next state-wide elections is brief. To clutter the obvious opportunities for reform with unfamiliar and untested novelties will be to risk another default, whatever the motivations.

School enrollments down but costs rise

MADISON — Nearly 25 years ago I decided with thousands of other Americans that I preferred to bring up my family in the quiet of the suburbs. I then found myself in an unwary moment elected to a place on the governing board of a unit of government that no longer exists. I am happy to say.

My neighbors had concluded that I was suited to become the clerk of the school board of what was then known as a suspended school district. The district, in effect, had given up the ghost and confined itself to paying tuition for its younger residents to the neighboring big city school system and financing their transportation to their classes under a newly-enacted requirement of state law.

On the whole it was an illuminating experience, although like the time I drew a winning number in a state-sponsored lottery to shoot surplus deer within a game refuge, it is not the sort of thing a person would choose to repeat.

Tuition going up

My colleagues of the board were two elderly folk. One was a retired civil servant, the other the wife of a conservative farmer. At our first meeting, the major item of business was a notice from the big city about another rise in the cost for tuition for each of the children within our jurisdiction with respect to providing the free public education guaranteed by law.

My only real memory of that meeting was the consternation that was shown by my colleagues when the prospective tuition charge of the parent city was submitted.

The charge, as I recall, was moving up toward the staggering total of $300 per pupil per school term. Remembering that the legislature had also made the district liable for transporting — or reimbursing parents for transporting — all children of school age to their classes, we spent an anxious hour worrying about the repercussions when the tax liability equivalent should become known.

My colleagues have passed to their reward, but I recalled that evening a few days ago when the state Department of Public Instruction sent an admirably comprehensive statistical summary of the performance and the cost of the Wisconsin public school system during the last 10 years.

During the last decade only, the total cost of operations of the public schools of Wisconsin have nearly doubled. A per pupil charge by the city of Madison, of which I have long since been a contented and legally qualified resident, that was pushing toward $300 as we worried about it in that farm kitchen a long time ago reached $831 for the state as a whole last year.

Almost surely, it has pushed beyond $1,000 in the localities able and willing to bear the tax consequences. Escalating at the rate of about 10 per cent a year, in spite of the first true signs of enrollment decline, the public school effort of the state as represented in public elementary and high schools has now reached about a billion dollars a year.

Enrollments levelling off

For the first time, there is reason to suppose that there will be a stabilization of total enrollments. Except for the transfer of pupils from the financially troubled private schools, there would now be a substantial decline.

Will that also mean a stabilization, or actual reduction of total outlay? There is no sign of such a result. Cost inflation continues at a substantial rate. Even with enrollment declines and a stabilization of the economy, there would be no such assurance.

Pressure for wage and other benefit boosts is more likely to grow stronger than to decline, as the negotiating difficulties of school boards have so spectacularly shown. Per pupil ratios will continue to decline. Academic attainment of teachers is steadily enlarging, which means that more of them will be in the more costly salary ranges.

Beyond such obvious cost implications are new conceptions of school functions and requirements for their performance, in services to the handicapped, to minorities and others. The legislature a few months ago added a whole new list of priority requirements for school spending with scarcely a sign of public awareness of the long range cost implications.

Nixon misses energy boat

The energy crisis presented the President with an opportunity for political comeback. He could have told the truth about the problem, and summoned people to sacrifice in a way that might have rallied the country.

Instead, Mr. Nixon has defined an objective that, while rhetorically pleasing, does not make sense. He has not charted the way to achieve an objective that does make sense.

The goal Mr. Nixon has set is "independence." "Project Independence 1980," the modest name he has given for his energy program, is supposed to insure that "by the end of this decade, Americans will not have to rely on any source of energy beyond our own."

Now all that has a pleasant ring. It evokes memories of sturdy old American virtues. But does it have anything to do with American needs now, or the needs of the rest of the world?

The one thing we clearly need is to be independent of Arab oil — now and even after a peace settlement in the Middle East. But that does not mean an isolationist policy of self-sufficiency. On the contrary, the need to cut loose from dependence on the Arab lands of the Near East only reinforces the incentive for closer ties with other countries.

The non-Arab oil-producing lands, first of all. Do we want to cut ourselves off from Canada? Or Venezuela? Or Indonesia? Or Nigeria? Or Iran? Absolutely not. We want them to cooperate with the United States and other friendly countries in maximizing production. But if we go in for self-sufficiency, those friendly countries will have an incentive not to cooperate.

Similarly with many of the oil-consuming lands. In courting Arab oil, the Japanese and some Europeans have deliberately taken their distances from the United States. But that doesn't have to be, and shouldn't be, a permanent condition.

Our interest is to cooperate with the Europeans and Japanese as much as possible in the energy field — particularly in organizing joint research projects. But that also will be "impossible if the United States goes for self-sufficiency."

Even assuming the more sensible goal of joint self-sufficiency with friendly countries, the program favored by Mr. Nixon seems unlikely to get us there. Research and development is to be raised from under $1 billion annually to $10 billion beginning next year. That's dandy. But it is very doubtful that any of the research projects — whether for gasifying coal or developing nuclear energy or using shale oil — will begin to pay off before 1980.

For the crunch period between now and 1980, Mr. Nixon suggests voluntary programs which emphasize cutbacks in the use of gasoline. With less gas being consumed, the oil companies would be under pressure to produce more of the heating oils which are in such short supply as to threaten a possible recession.

But very few of the experts believe the voluntary program will work. Even if it does work, it means that the major oil companies do the rationing of gasoline. Which is fine for those of us who can easily slip a fiver to the friendly filling station owner, but hard on those who can't.

centrate on changing the patterns of consumption in this country. It would put a damper on the big gasoline guzzlers coming out of Detroit. It would push hard for rail transit in and between major cities.

Most important of all, it would force industries that derive power from oil and gas — a group which consumes some 20 per cent of the American energy diet — to switch to coal. It would produce more coal not by despoiling West Virginia or the Rocky Mountain states, but from the abundant seams in southern Illinois and Kentucky. And since that coal is heavy in sulfur content, there would have to be mandatory provisions for keeping the air clean by smoke filters.

Maybe something like that will emerge from the group under John Sawhill in the Office of Management and Budget which is actually putting together the energy program. If so, it will be without the help of the President. Not for the first time, Mr. Nixon has mired himself so deep in phony rhetoric that he has lost the genuine benefits which might have flowed from a straight approach to a serious national problem.

Methodist ladies plan festival

100 YEARS AGO
Appleton Crescent, Dec. 6, 1873.

At J. C. Smith Hall, on Wednesday afternoon and evening, Dec. 10, 1873, a Fair and Festival will be held by the Ladies Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church of this city.

The immediate object is to furnish their new and handsome church now in process of erection.

A great variety of articles — both useful and ornamental — will be offered for sale, and refreshments will be served at any time desired during the evening. All are respectfully invited to give the society a generous patronage.

Need to know about what is wrong

Suppose you visited a doctor for a complete checkup, and you then received a full report from him that went something like this:

"I'm pleased to be able to tell you that your eyes, ears, nose and throat are fine. Your skin is unblemished, your spine uncurved, and your neurological system is first-rate.

"Also, your heart is strong, your lungs powerful, and your spleen is a thing of medical beauty. Liver is normal, gall bladder excellent, and the urinary tract is healthy.

"Oh, yes, we also found a cancer in the bowel that is rapidly metastasizing and calls for immediate radical surgery. Otherwise, you're in terrific shape."

What kind of nut is this doctor, you would be asking yourself. What does it matter how splendid my spleen is, or how normal my gall bladder, when a malignancy threatens to kill me soon?

And, of course, you would be perfectly right. But this is exactly the kind of request I often get from readers, who ask me to "say something good" about what's happening in the country, or in the world, and stop emphasizing what they call "the negative."

A typical letter of this sort arrived this morning from Miami, in which the correspondent wondered whether I'm "just the type of person who would rather look for the bad instead of the good things in life." He suggests that if

I wrote more about the good things "this would alleviate some of the pain in the bad things which have been happening to us recently."

This strikes me as a foolish, dangerous and treacherous attitude; as much as the foregoing doctor's report would be. What we need to know is not what is right with us — such things are usually evident — but what is wrong. One essential thing that is wrong can kill us, and the dozen other things that are right won't help.

As for "alleviating some of the pain," this is the worst treatment one could recommend; for if you relieve the symptoms of pain while the disease continues to progress, you are conspiring in mortality. Pain is the activator that makes us do something about the ailment, which we otherwise would be content to ignore until it was too late.

I love the "good things" about our country, and our world. And the only way I know to keep them is by alerting us to the cancers that threaten to take them away from us, and us from them. The commentator's greatest value, like the doctor's, is to warn, not to praise.

Arab oil embargo not all 'blackmail'

KUWAIT — The shameful short-sightedness of the Nixon administration in ignoring the power of Arab oil as a weapon in the Arab-Israeli 25-year war is painfully evident here where some of the world's purest crude is produced at a cost of a mere six cents a barrel from ground to tanker.

"You must face a cold fact," a leader in Kuwait's national assembly told us in the cloakroom of the modern parliament building. "The longer the war goes on between our Arab friends and the Israelis, the better it is economically for us."

Conceding that this is "a tragic way to look at it," the parliamentary leader insisted, nevertheless, that it is the accurate way.

Can't spend all the money

The reason: with the price of oil soaring (the posted price here is about $5 today, up from $2.88 on Oct. 6, the day the war started), Kuwait wants to reduce its production of oil far below the maximum. It cannot spend the dollar income.

Yet, U.S. politicians and some high level Nixon administration officials who ought to know better are now accusing the oil states of "blackmail" because they won't continue feeding oil to the West while Israel occupies substantial Arab territories in defiance of repeated Western pledges to restore most of the old borders.

Far worse, veiled hints of U.S. counteraction against the Arabs can have only one result: to harden the Arabs, thereby extending the oil squeeze. The fact is that the steady growth of oil production in the Arab states the past few years has served Western and U.S. ends more than it has economically benefited the oil states. The present squeeze, imposed by the political requirements of the Arab-Israeli war, is proving that point every day.

Only three years ago, the two big oil companies that operate the immensely valuable fields in tiny Kuwait—British Petroleum and Shell—were pushing the government to increase the rate of production as high as 6 million barrels a day. That would have made Kuwait second only to Saudi Arabia as a producer of crude—larger even than Iran.

Would have exhausted supply

Such a drastic increase in production would have been fine for BP, Shell and its Western customers but potentially disastrous for the future of Kuwait.

Specialists here estimate that even a 3-million-barrel-a-day production rate would exhaust proven oil reserves in Kuwait in about 40 years. Then what?

"We shudder to think" of the time when our oil runs out," one high-level government planner told us. "That's all we have. We must use it sparingly and wisely to survive as a nation."

In short, reduced future production of Kuwait's rich crude was always inevitable, and so were eventual cutbacks of the infinitely richer reserves in Saudi Arabia. In Kuwait, one oil official told us, the proper production rate may be one million barrels a day—far less than the 3-million rate when the Oct. 6 war started or the 6-million rate the Western companies were aiming for.

In Saudi Arabia, King Faisal had given private assurances that he would probably meet the high-pressure demand of the U.S. and gradually escalate his production to around 20 million barrels a day by 1980—almost three times the rate before the Oct. 6 war. But such assurances contradicted harsh economic facts: the Saudis could not possibly spend the tens of billions of dollars in annual income resulting from such a production rate, which, as in Kuwait, would hasten the day when oil, its only economic asset, would disappear.

They're looking to future

Both countries want only enough oil income to finance long-range investment in petro-chemicals and to train technicians to surmount centuries of primitive technologies and economies.

It is senseless for American officials to scream "blackmail" because the Arab oil states finally, after years of being ignored, are using their only lever of national power to force Middle East settlement to their liking.

It is just as senseless as it was for the Nixon administration to ignore the reality of Arab oil power since the 1967 war, when the Arabs first threatened to use it to obtain Israeli withdrawal from Arab territory. Now that the Arabs have found how vulnerable the West really is, the comfortable past when oil flowed to suit the West's demands may never return.

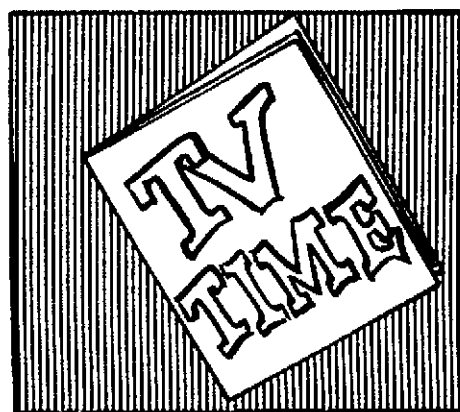

Man, 35, treated for apparent stab wounds

A 35-year-old Appleton man was treated early today at St. Elizabeth Hospital for what police said were three stab wounds to his right wrist.

Released after the treatment was Lealand Zehren, 1525 E. College Ave. Police were summoned to the hospital to question him after he came in for treatment.

Zehren refused to give details on the injury. Under repeated questioning from police, he said he had stuck his hand through a window.

The investigating officer said he believed Zehren had sustained stab wounds and that they apparently were not self-inflicted.

Courts

James M. Garcia, 20, 616½ W. Main St., Hortonville, was fined $175 and ordered to attend group dynamics traffic safety school after he was found guilty Tuesday of driving while intoxicated.

The charge resulted from a late Nov. 19 accident on State 76, one mile north of Shiocton, in which Garcia's car missed a curve, left the pavement, struck a ditch embankment and overturned. A passenger, William H. Brauer, 22, Shiocton, was injured in the crash.

Garcia pleaded guilty to the charge before Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2.

Two young men were found guilty Tuesday of speeding 30 miles per hour over the posted limit the night of Nov. 21 at Outagamie County Trunk V and Casaloma Drive, Town of Grand Chute.

One defendant, Peter T. Stelow, 16, 3130 Justin Court, Appleton, was ordered to attend traffic safety school. David A. Herzfeldt, 19, Dale, was fined $100.

Both pleaded guilty before Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2.

Marilyn K. Brown, 18, route 2, Manawa, was fined $50 after she was found guilty Tuesday of shoplifting a $1.35 package of nail enamel on Nov. 13 from Prange-way.

She pleaded guilty before Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2.

A 28-year-old Seymour woman was fined $175 and ordered to attend group dynamics traffic safety school after she was found guilty Tuesday of driving while intoxicated.

Lucille A. Jankowski, 763 W. Factory St., pleaded no contest to the charge when she appeared before Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2.

The charge stemmed from a Nov. 20 accident in Seymour. Police said Mrs. Jankowski was driving south on Park Lane when her car sideswiped another auto parked on the opposite side of the street. Her vehicle then jumped a curb and continued across a yard, crashing into the side of the Robert Calhoro residence, 352 Park Lane.

Woman robbed of $50 early today by 2 men

Appleton police are investigating an early morning robbery in which a Kimberly woman said she lost $50 to two men.

The woman, Susan K. Baranowski, 23, 1503 W. Fourth St., gave police these details:

She had just parked a car in the 100 block of S. Locust Street about 1:20 a.m. and was walking across the street when she was approached by the two men. One of them told her to be quiet as they forced her back into the auto.

One of the men took the money from her purse and then the two left the area, possibly in another car. The woman said she had screamed for help and received none, although several people walked by the car during the incident. She was not harmed.

She said she scratched one of the men during the robbery.

She described one of the men as about 6 feet, 4 inches tall and wearing a powder blue sweater. The other was about 5 feet, 10 inches tall with a long scar on one hand.

The ECONOMIZER

A good way to get the goods.

Most people spend over 75% of their daily earnings on taxes and the basic necessities. and we all have noticed that the percentage is rising. It's no wonder that borrowing money plays an important part in balancing your family budget. At the Northern State Bank we understand. So we came up with The ECONOMIZER, a loan that no other bank in the area can match. Here's what makes it different:

1. Interest is computed only on the unpaid balance, not added on to the amount borrowed, as with the conventional installment loan.
2. We give you full benefit of partial prepayment
3. The exact amount of principal outstanding and the interest paid to date is on your payment record, normally this must be requested.
4. We do not charge you late charges or payment penalties. Your interest is computed on a daily basis for the percentage contracted for on a 365 day table.

We'll make it easier for you to get your loan, with payments that you can handle. We want your business, so we give you the type of loans and services that will keep you coming back. Come in and see what The ECONOMIZER loan can do to help you. At the Northern State Bank we take better care of you.

Local control assured in new transportation agency

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — A spokesman for Gov. Patrick J. Lucey has assured Northeastern Wisconsin legislators that wording of proposed legislation reorganizing the Department of Transportation will be changed to assure local municipalities of their right to begin their own highway projects.

Stephen Holmgren, Lucey's legislative liaison aide, calmed the fears of Rep. Cletus Vanderperren, D-Green Bay, and others who felt the wording of the bill gave complete authority to a proposed new five-man transportation commission.

Vanderperren's Assembly Highway Committee held a public hearing Thursday on a bill, which Vanderperren has agreed to author himself, that will eliminate the present highway commission and divisions of highways and aeronautics, and create one five-man commission and one state transportation fund.

"I agree with Rep. Vanderperren that the wording of the bill gives the impression that all local projects must be approved by the new commission," Holmgren said. "But I have talked with the department secretary and his interpretation is that only those projects which affect the statewide plans will have to get that approval. That's no different than it is now. I'm certain there will be an amendment to correct the wording."

The bill, which has been proposed by the Department of Transportation, is a major step in an effort to put finding of highways, mass transit and all other transportation expenses under one head.

Norman Clapp, department secretary, told the committee that passage of the bill would help clean up the transportation funding system that is currently meeting many obstacles.

Clapp would say nothing about the planned funding programs under a new department setup but he is expected to make his funding proposals, which some suspect might include a gas tax increase, soon.

Rep. Earl McEssy, R-Fond du Lac, who has attached his name to the bill as a co-author, expressed concern for provisions which designate final funding authority to Clapp.

McEssy told highway commission chairman Robert Huber that the bill creates "a czar" but Huber responded by stating that the chain of command developed was necessary. Huber also said a five-man commission would be necessary because of the added responsibilities.

Wisconsin County Boards Association Executive Director Robert Mortensen sent a letter to the committee in which he stated that the Wisconsin highway commissioners and committee members associations were opposed to the reshuffling of the department structure.

In his letter, Mortensen expressed a concern for local needs and emphasized the provision that forces all municipalities to gain commission approval before projects can be commenced.

The only other opposition came from the American Automobile Association (AAA) through lobbyist Arthur Wichern, who praised the present three-man highway commission and said the change in name to transportation commission "would have a bad psychological effect on highway funds."

"This change moves the emphasis from the legislative branch to the executive branch," Wichern said. "It gives too much power to the secretary, and thus, to the governor."

Rep. William Rogers, D-Kaukauna, told Wichern that he could not understand his opposition since the new setup, he said, would finally take care of mass transit needs and not hurt the highway funds.

The transportation department has estimated that the proposed changes would cost about $80,000 more a year, the extra funds needed primarily to pay salaries for two additional commission members.

The bill is expected to be a major part of the two-month legislative session beginning in late January, a session which Gov. Lucey has said will be dedicated primarily to the transportation question.

Schools get energy guidelines

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — The state handed down energy guidelines Thursday for public schools, including instructions on what to do if fuel shortages cause shutdowns.

The state school superintendent, Barbara Thompson said fuel supplies could reach a critical level. In a letter to school districts, she listed suggestions to keep schools operating within legal requirements.

Mrs. Thompson notified school superintendents her department does not intend to penalize schools with a loss of state aids if they cannot meet the required 180 days of annual operation because of the fuel shortage.

However, "many legal and financial questions will need resolution if the energy shortage impacts upon the normal operation of our schools," she said.

Statutory requirements "appear most critical to the heating fuel situation," Mrs. Thompson said: minimum temperature range from 55 degrees in gymnasiums to 75 degrees for natatoriums and bathrooms.

Classrooms, wardrobe, locker and toilet rooms must be kept at 70 degrees. Dining rooms and kitchens may be lowered to 65 and 66 degrees respectively, play rooms to 60 and assembly halls to 68.

Statutes also require the outside air supply of an occupied area must be at least 7½ cubic feet per minute per occupant, she said.

A bill in the Assembly would permit the Public Service Commission to suspend that rule during energy shortages.

The department asked schools to determine whether custodians can do their work during normal school hours, and teachers can do evening work at home.

The department also recommended review of bus routes to reduce mileage and reduce field trips.

In the event any school must close, the department listed 40 items that should be protected from freezing.

Mrs. Thompson said that if the state has to make a decision on fuel allocation, it would "give definite preference to that user which can document prior efforts to conserve energy."

Lucey jeered for snomo fuel views

PORT WASHINGTON, Wis. (AP) — Teen-agers jeered Thursday when Gov. Patrick J. Lucey tried to explain that snowmobiles and school buses do not mix during periods of fuel shortage.

Discussing fuel allocations with a high school audience, Lucey created mumbling when he remarked: "If it came to choosing school buses or snowmobiles, I would opt for school buses."

When a student asked his opinion of assuring gasoline supplies for snowmobiles, Lucey replied: "I am tempted to say not one gallon this winter."

The mumbling turned to jeer, and the governor added: "But you can see why I am not saying that."

Fuel oil supply to be short of expectations

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Stanley York, state emergency energy coordinator, says Wisconsin may not get as much fuel oil in December as he had hoped.

York said the supply available to the state would not be known until petroleum corporations finished submitting reports late this afternoon.

However, the preliminary outlook was for a supply equal to about 85 per cent of that which was available last December, and perhaps as skimpy as 75 per cent, he said Thursday.

Because of an unusually mild November, there were hopes that extra oil would be available for December, he said.

Among the initial reports, he said, were signs that one producer can provide local suppliers with amounts equal to 96 per cent of the supply available a year ago.

Another producer, however, said it can guarantee no more than 50 per cent for its distributors, York said.

The Nixon administration has given oil corporations the task of allocating fuel supplies to users.

Large sets hearings on campaign finances

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Hearings have been scheduled for December in Madison, Superior and Sheboygan concerning campaign finance reform, a Senate committee chairman said Thursday.

Sen. Gerald Lorge, R-Bear Creek, chairman of the Judiciary and Insurance Committee, said the hearings would cover nine bills before the legislature, plus a report from Gov. Patrick J. Lucey's task force on campaign reforms.

Lorge said the issue might be available for a special legislative session, if Lucey calls one on the fuel crisis and revenue sharing.

"It is my feeling campaign reform legislation should be adopted in the Jan. 29 session or before so the upcoming judicial and state constitutional elections will be conducted under terms of the new law," Lorge said.

Lucey met with legislative leaders earlier this week and asked that hearings be held so prompt action could be taken when the legislature returns to work.

Lorge scheduled the hearings for Dec. 5 at the state Capitol, Dec. 12 in Superior and Dec. 19 in Sheboygan.

Ethics code excludes UW officials

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — College administrators should be excluded from the state's new Code of Ethics, the state Ethics Board ruled Thursday.

The University of Wisconsin's Board of Regents would remain subject to the code, however, and Atty. Gen. Robert W. Warren said the legislature should extend the code to municipal officials as well as state personnel.

The board's review of the code which goes into effect Jan. 1 led to recommendations for closing loopholes and suggestions that legislators be asked to clarify some of their ground rules.

The review session heard protests from members of state examining boards, threatening to resign because of the code's requirements for disclosure of financial assets.

Board members said legislators had not made it clear whether the rules require disclosure of all assets, or simply identification of a corporation in which a public official has invested at least $5,000.

The code directs UW regents to adopt an ethics code for its university personnel, using the state code as a guideline, Charles N. Egan, the board's executive director said.

The state Personnel Bureau is to adopt a similar code for bureaucratic personnel.

The legislature, however, excluded "teaching personnel" from the code, and the ethics board voted to classify college administrators under the definition.

"You are taking every top UW administrator and excluding him from the ethics code," Egan told the board.

He also recommended the board's modifications of the rules be included in the legislature's annual budget review measure, saying the maneuver would reduce the chances of radical alteration of the code.

The board rejected his suggestion. James L. McCamy, a UW professor, objected to the principle of placing the ethics issue in a fiscal bill.

"This was passed in the budget bill and it was cute," McCamy said. "You should never be cute in politics."

When members of the examining board objected to provisions that might require them to make their family finances public, McCamy replied: "If any of you people feel strong enough, you can test this in court."

Mass resignations by indignant personnel because of the code should be avoided, Judge Gerald Boileau of Wausau said.

He said the legislature "should be given opportunity to head off the catastrophe by changing the law."

Protests were registered by members of the state's accountant, nurses and pharmacist examining boards.

Mrs. Virginia Hart of the state Department of Regulation and Licensing said about 78 of the state's 100 examining board members would be subject to the code.

Courts

Louise Klein, 19, 229 Brooklyn St., Chilton, was fined $50 after she was found guilty Tuesday of shoplifting four feminine apparel items and a container of lip gloss valued together at $3.92 on Nov. 3 from K mart.

She pleaded guilty before Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2.

Elaine Stevenson, 33, 423 S. Matthias St., pleaded guilty to one count of shoplifting when she appeared before Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2.

She admitted taking 10 children's garments valued together at $11.99 on Nov. 3 from K mart. Schaefer scheduled disposition for today.

Two route 1, Kaukauna, men each forfeited $128 to cover fines and court costs resulting from Oct. 26 conservation violations in the Town of Liberty.

The two were charged with shining wild animals while in possession of firearms and possession of uncased firearms. They are Edward W. Kloes, 20, and Richard W. Vande Hey, 23.

The forfeitures were approved by Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2.

George E. Gaylor, 36, 3312 W. Northland Ave., forfeited $59 to cover a fine and court costs from a charge of littering from a car Nov. 7 in the Town of Black Creek.

The forfeiture was approved Tuesday by Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2.

Percente Morin, Milwaukee, was ordered to make $45 per week payments or face a 30-day jail sentence for contempt of court relating to a nonsupport action.

Morin was informed of the alternatives when he appeared before Judge Urban P. Van Susteren in Outagamie County Court Branch 1.

Morin was charged with accumulating a $415 arrearage in payments for the support of his four children, ages 13 to 17. The wife and children live in Appleton. The Morins were divorced in 1966.

Joseph Darling, 37, 3133 N. Ballard Road, has been fined $50 after he was found guilty of failing to transfer the title of a car.

Darling, doing business as Jim & Joe's Auto Sales, was accused of failing to transfer the title of a 1969 Toyota Landcruiser from the time he sold it to Steven J. Kamba, 1735 W. Butte des Morts Beach Road, Neenah, on Dec. 29, 1972, until the first week of this month, when he reportedly turned the title over to another automobile dealership in Appleton.

Darling pleaded no contest to the charge before Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2.

Connie Hagen, 19, route 2, Iola, was fined $50 after she was found guilty Tuesday of shoplifting.

She admitted taking a $3.44 tie on Nov. 10 from K mart and pleaded guilty to the charge before Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2.

State's strong economic showing for October not expected to hold up

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Wisconsin's economy made a strong showing in October, but indications are that business activity will drop in the future, a state agency said Wednesday.

In its monthly report, the Department of Industry, Labor and Human Relations said employment last month grew at an annual rate of 14 per cent, overshadowing an increase in the number of unemployed.

As a result, October's seasonally adjusted unemployment rate was 4.2 per cent, unchanged from a year ago.

Leading the employment increase were manufacturing and agriculture, which had an unusual number of workers because of warm fall weather.

A number of indicators which forecast future business activity showed weaknesses, however, the department said.

The average work week dropped, initial claims for unemployment benefits rose and business incorporations continued to decline, dropping 11.7 per cent in October from April's peak.

The first regular meeting in November of the Appleton Joint School District No. 10 Board of Education was held in the Board of Education Conference Room on Monday, November 12, 1973. The meeting was called to order by the President, Mabel McClanahan, at 7:15 a.m.

The following Board members were present: Mrs. McClanahan, Mr. Becker, Mr. Heid, Mr. McKenzie, Mrs. Patterson, and Mr. Sager. Absent was Mr. Schneider.

Mr. Becker moved approval of the minutes of the October 22 and 30, 1973, Board of Education meetings as circulated. Second by Mr. Sager and carried unanimously.

Communications were read.
Hearings of Delegations:
Mr. Edgar Burkhardt, representing the West High School Music Parents Association, requested permission to sponsor a sale of citrus fruits before Christmas for the benefit of all the musical organizations at Appleton West. He also stated that the Music Parents would like to be able to assist the music department in such areas as transportation, purchases of equipment and uniforms, music festival fees, and other expenses not covered by school budgeted funds.

Mr. James Murphy, Principal of Madison Junior High School, was present to voice his views on the High School. He stated that he considered this action to be a temporary and partial solution. Mr. Murphy asked the Board to consider the possibility of constructing an additional gymnasium directly east of Madison's present facility. Mrs. McClanahan stated that his request would be discussed by the Board later in the meeting.

Mr. McClanahan declared the hearing of delegations closed.

Under the recommendation of Mr. Boettcher, Mr. Sager moved approval of the Music Parents' request to sponsor a one time sale of citrus fruits to benefit the musical organizations of Appleton West as outlined by Mr. Edgar Burkhardt. Second by Mr. Patterson and carried unanimously.
